GERMANS DECLARE TERMS MEAN DEATH FOR MILLIONS

SLAIN IN ROW OVER GIRLS

Police Seek Woman Who Saw Quincy Youth Fatally Assaulted on Night of May 4

George Doyle of Quincy, who died under peculiar circumstances on Warren street, in Roxbury, on the night of May 4 last, was the victim of an attack by young men who resented his addressing their girl companions, and not of alcoholism, Boston police announced today. Arrests are expected soon.

Police Inspector James G. Conboy, who has been investigating the case, finds that Doyle died of a fractured skull, sustained when he was knocked down by the young men, and that a woman whose name is unknown to the police saw the assault. This woman went to get the injured man a glass of water, but did not leave her name, and search is being made for her.

Doyle, who was twenty-two years old, and lived at No. 64 Phipps street, Quincy, was at first stated to have died of alcohol poisoning. He was found unconscious outside the home of Ernest Broderick, No. 325 Warren street, the night of May 4, and died without regaining his senses.

The police learn that there were three young men in the party which assaulted him, and that the girls accompanying them were all about seventeen years old.

EVANGELINE BOOTH MAY BE A U. S. ARMY COLONEL

© IRA L. HILL

Miss Evangeline Booth.

By International News Service.

Washington, May 23. — America's gratitude for the work of the Salvation Army in France and Belgium was voiced today by a resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana conferring upon Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, the honorary rank of colonel in the United States army, and further recommending that the distinguished service medal be awarded Miss Booth by Congress.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Senator Watson spoke of the high esteem in which the Salvation Army is held by American soldiers and said that the secret of the great success of the work was due to the preparedness of the organization when the war broke out in 1914.

"This work of service was started," the Senator said, "by Miss Booth borrowing $25,000 and sending twenty workers to France. When the armistice was signed there were 1,120 women and aged men carrying on the Salvation Army work back of the trenches. There were 410 Salvation Army huts and hotels."

At army headquarters in Boston today, old-line officers said that, so far as they could recall, this was the first attempt to honor any woman by conferring upon her the honorary rank of colonel in the United States Army. If the resolutions recommended by Senator Watson is adopted and an honorary colonelcy is bestowed upon Miss Booth an interesting precedent will be set in our military affairs.

SAYS ALLIES ARE ABOUT TO RECOGNIZE ANTI-"REDS"

Paris, May 23.—The allies and the United States are about to recognize the Omak (anti-Bolshevik) government in Siberia, headed by Admiral Kolchack, the Petit Journal states today. A representative of Admiral Kolchack may be admited to the peace conference to sign the general treaty containing the terms to Germany.

The Passing of the Tambourine

The jingling little instrument, by means of which The Salvation Army has collected money to aid the poor, the weak and the unfortunate, has been discarded by order of the Commander. The Salvation Army is enlarging its work in the slums, the Poverty streets and alleys of American cities.

Its officers no longer will have time for soliciting funds in the streets. So the tambo must go.

The Army, back from the war, is prepared to fight misery in America. It conducts Rescue Homes—Day Nurseries—Lodging Houses for Down and Outers—Homes for the Helpless Aged—Fresh-Air Farms—Free Clinics.

It must continue on a larger scale than ever.

IDENTIFY MARION O'BRIEN

Policeman Sure Girl Was With Barney in Escape; Clerk Sold Her Straw Hat

Miss Marion O'Brien, sweetheart of Herman Barney, was identified at Charles Street Jail today by Patrolman Montgomery of Brighton as the girl who was with Barney at the rear of the apartment house, No. 1412 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, last Wednesday night, when Barney was intercepted by the police.

A hat store salesman identified Miss O'Brien as the girl to whom he sold a straw hat, the hat being the new one which Barney had on when caught by the police after his pursuit along Commonwealth avenue, Allston street and Warren street Wednesday night.

The hat salesman picked Miss O'Brien out from among nine girls. He said that when she purchased the hat she explained the purchase by saying:

"The man for whom I am buying this hat is unable to come here and get one for himself."

The hat was one of the best the store carried—a five-dollar affair. As it turned out, the hat did not fit Barney well at that.

The straw hat was purchased at a store on Washington street. The salesman was taken to the jail by

SENATE RUSHES SOLDIERS' AID BILL THROUGH

Washington, May 23.—The Senate this afternoon passed in three minutes an appropriation of $45,000,000 for the payment of allotments by the bureau of war risk insurance and for Civil War veterans.

Senator Lodge, Republican leader, asked that the bill be passed without going to a committee in order that the dependents of soldiers and sailors might receive their allotments.

The measure was jammed through without a roll call. It was passed by the House yesterday. It now goes to the President.

DENY PETITION FOR NEW HAVEN RECEIVERSHIP

New York, May 23.—Application by minority stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for the appointment of a minority receiver to prosecute former directors of the road was denied by Judge Manton today. The application was made on February 13 by Harold Norris and others, who alleged that the present management of the road refused to prosecute suits they had pending against former directors for millions of dollars.

DENY REPORT NINE OF U. S. PEACE MEN RESIGNED

London, May 23.—Vigorous denial is made of the report that nine members of the American peace delegation have resigned, said a Central News dispatch from Paris today. The only member who has resigned is Dr. Bullitt, who disagreed with his colleagues over the Russian policy, the dispatch added. Dr. Bullitt favors recognition of the Soviet regime at Moscow.

LIGHTS SEEN ON MONDAY

Plane Was Then 1,000 Miles From St. Johns, Cable Ship Faraday Reports

By International News Service.

London, May 23.—The cable ship Faraday reported today that she sighted the lights of an aeroplane early Monday morning, about midway between Newfoundland and the coast of Ireland, the wireless press announced this afternoon. The Faraday gave the exact position of the plane at 50.28 north, 30.02 west.

If the Faraday's lookout was not mistaken the aeroplane must have been the Sopwith biplane in which Harry G. Hawker and Mackenzie Grieve met death in attempting to fly from Newfoundland to Ireland.

The Faraday's report is the first seemingly authentic word regarding the missing aeroplane since she left St. John's last Sunday evening and apparently disposes of the theory that Hawker and his navigator dropped into the sea shortly after starting.

Traveling at a speed of about 100 miles an hour, the average Hawker hoped to maintain, the Sopwith biplane would have been in about the position the Faraday indicates early Monday.

The Sopwith Aeroplane Company requested the Marconi Wireless Company to send messages to all ships

POLES DRIVING THE UKRAINIANS BEFORE THEM

London, May 23.—Two armies are making a great converging movement upon Petrograd, and advices today indicated that the Bolshevik troops would be compelled to evacuate the Petrograd-Pskov-Minsk line.

The Finns are advancing from the north and the Esthonians are driving from the southwest.

The Poles are overwelming the Ukranians. General Haller's divisions that were sent into Poland from France are apparently everywhere victorious in the fighting against the Ukranians.

There is severe fighting in progress around Kiev, where the Ukranians are attempting an offensive.

Nicolai Lenine and Leon Trotsky, heads of the Bolsheviki regime at Moscow, are now reported to be in personal command of the Bolshevik armies.

8-HOUR DAY BILL IS OFFERED BY MOSES

Washington, May 23.—Eight hours were fixed as a maximum for a day's work in any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory and manufacturing establishment engaged in production of wares entering into interstate commerce, in a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire. Penalty for violation of the proposed law was fixed at a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, imprisonment not to exceed one year, or both.

Germany Too Weak to Offer Armed Resistance

By International News Service.

Washington, May 23.—Germany's military strength is such that she could offer no real resistance to an allied army of any size.

State Department officials, in letting it be known that they have in their possession practically complete figures on the forces of the enemy, informally made this assertion today. They know positively that there are but four completely equipped regiments in Central and Southern Germany.

The possibility of Germany being able to raise a large volunteer army was not discounted by officials who informally discussed the situation, but they declared that Germany could get only men—supplies and equipment being lacking.

'ANTIS' BLOCK SUFFRAGE IN SENATE

Underwood of Alabama Insists That Measure Be Sent to a Committee

By International News Service.

Washington, May 23.—Efforts to speed action on the constitutional amendment granting woman suffrage were blocked this afternoon by opponents of suffrage. Senator Johnson of California asked to have the suffrage resolution, passed by the House, sent to the calendar without first being considered by a committee.

Senator Underwood of Alabama objected and demanded that the measure be sent to committee.

Senator Jones of New Mexico maintained that there was no committee to which the resolution could be sent until the Senate is organized.

The Vice-President ruled that the old committees were still continued by special resolution until new bodies were elected.

BUCKLEY DIVORCE CASE IS DISMISSED BY COURT

Judge Sisk dismissed in the Dedham Superior Court today the divorce action of Mrs. Kate A. Buckley of Atlantic and the cross-suit of her husband William L. Buckley, a prominent contractor and a former Quincy assessor. The case was on trial for a week. Mrs. Buckley charged her husband with cruel and abusive treatment and in his cross-suit he charged her with intoxication. Witnesses, among them a clergyman, Rev. Mr. Davidson of Atlantic, testified to having seen Mrs. Buckley under the influence of liquor. Mrs. Buckley was well known as a public reader.

CHARGE WORLD CONGRESS OF WOMEN AIDS GERMANY

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service From the London Daily Express.

Berne, May 23.—Swiss newspapers are severely attacking the International Congress of Women at Zurich, where delegates from the United States and Great Britain have been the principal speakers. The Journal de Geneve says that feeling is unanimous that the adoption of the protest against the peace terms by the congress of women made them instruments in the hands of the Germans."

CLAIM IS REJECTED BY THE ALLIES

By International News Service.

Paris, May 23.—"A rash assertion," was Premier Clemenceau's reply, on behalf of the allies, to the dramatic declaration by Count von Brockdorff-Rautzau, head of the German peace delegation, that the signing of the peace treaty means "the death sentence of millions of German men, women and children."

The text of the German protest of economic conditions, in which Von Brockdorff-Rantzau's statement was made, and the allied answer, were made public today.

Premier Clemenceau reminded the Germans that they might well bear larger loss of life as a result of the war since they had started it. He denied, however, that the economic restrictions imposed on Germany would mean her death, pointing to Great Britain as a nation which imports at least half her food supplies and most of her raw materials from abroad.

The allied reply further pointed out that no German territory has suffered either from devastation or pillage in the war and that Germany's remaining resources, supplemented by the volume of import trade, were sufficient for her recovery and development.

"The German reply also ignores the immense relief that will be caused to her people in the struggle for recovery by the enforced reduction of her military armaments in the future," he added.

"SENTENCE OF DEATH."

"Those who will sign this treaty will sign the death sentence of many millions of German men, women and children," declared Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau in the German note of protest.

The German delegation asserted that Germany had grown from an agricultural State to an industrial State in which 15,000,000 persons made their living by foreign trade and

CLEMENCEAU, IN REPLY, SAYS FOE MUST EXPECT TO SUFFER

navigation, or by using raw material from foreign countries.

Under the terms of peace, it was asserted, Germany would lose in the East territory equivalent to the loss of twenty-one per cent of her total crop of corn and potatoes; she would lose three-quarters of her mineral production and in addition would be compelled to deliver enormous consignments of coal to allied countries.

"After this diminution of her products, after the economic depression caused by the loss of her colonies, of her merchant fleet and of her possessions abroad, Germany would not be in a state to import from abroad a sufficient quantity of raw material," Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau stated. "An enormous part of German industry therefore would inevitably be condemned to destruction and at the end of a very short time Germany would, therefore, not be in a position to give bread and work to her numerous millions of inhabitants who would be reduced to earning their livelihood by navigation and by trade.

"Those persons would have to emigrate, but that is a material impossibility because many countries and the most important ones will oppose any German immigration. Moreover, millions of Germans expelled from the territories of powers at war with Germany will return to their native land.

NATION'S HEALTH BROKEN.

"This putting into execution of the conditions of peace would, therefore, logically bring about the loss of several millions of persons in Germany. This catastrophe would not be long in coming, seeing that the health of the population has been broken down during the war by the blockade and during the armistice by the segregation of the blockade of famine. No help, however important, or over however long a period it might be distributed, would prevent these deaths.

"I thought it my duty before entering upon a discussion of other details of the treaty to bring to the knowledge of the allied and associated delegates this summary expose of the problem of the German people.

"I have at the disposal of your excellency statistical proofs of the above statements."

In his reply Premier Clemenceau declared:

"This report appears to contain a very inadequate presentation of the facts of the case; to be marked in parts by great exaggeration, and to ignore the fundamental considerations arising both out of the incidence and the results of the war, which explain and justify the terms that it is sought to impose.

REDUCED BY SIX MILLIONS.

"The German note opens with the statement that the industrial resources of Germany were inadequate before the war for the nourishment of a population of 67,000,000 and it argues as though this were the total for which, with diminished resources, she will still be called up to provide. This is not the case. The total population of Germany will be reduced by about 6,000,000 persons in the non-German territories which it is proposed to transfer. It is the needs of this smaller aggregation that we are called upon to consider.

"Nothing like Griffith's 'Broken Blossoms' ever done before."—N. Y. Globe. Coming to the Colonial Theatre, Wednesday evening, May 28th.—Advt.

"Complaint is made in the German note that Germany is required to surrender her merchant tonnage and that a prior claim is made upon her shipbuilding capacity for a limited term of years.

"No mention is made of the fact that a considerable portion of the smaller tonnage of Germany is left to her unimpaired; and it seems to have entirely escaped the notice of her spokesman that the sacrifice of her larger shipping is the inevitable and necessary penalty imposed upon her for the ruthless campaign which, in defiance of all laws, she waged during the last two years of the war upon the mercantile shipping of the world. As a partial offset against the 12,750,000 tons of shipping sunk, it is proposed to transfer 4,000,000 tons of German shipping."

GERMANY MUST SUFFER ALSO.

Replying to the German assertion regarding diminuation in crops, Premier Clemenceau pointed out that nothing would prevent Germany from growing corn and potatoes in other regions or from importing them.

"But should not the coal situation be viewed from a different and wider standpoint?" he asked. "It cannot be forgotten that among the most wanton acts of devastation perpetrated by the German armies during the war was the almost complete destruction of the coal supplies of northern France. An entire industry was obliterated with calculation and savagery which it will take years to repair. There can be no reason in equity why Germany, who deliberately made herself responsible for the deficiency, should not, to the full limit of her capacity, make it good.

"The allied and associated powers cannot accept the speculative estimate presented to them in the German note on the future conditions of German industry as a whole. Every country is called upon to suffer. There is no reason why Germany, which was responsible for the war, should not suffer also."

GILCHRIST EMPLOYES ENTERTAIN WAR HEROES

Employees of the Gilchrist Company recently returned from service, together with fifty wounded soldiers from Base Hospital 10, Roxbury, were entertained by the Gilchrist Cheerful Workers at a turkey supper, entertainment and dance in the club room of the store. C. C. Ferris, president of the Gilchrist Company, made the address of welcome, and Captain Henry D. Cormerais represented General Clarence R. Edwards. Addresses were also made by J. T. Chase, superintendent of the company; Frederick Vorenberg and Samuel Vorenberg and by four members of the board of management. Mrs. A. L. Ward was in charge of the reception and the dancing was directed by Miss C. M. Bruce, Mrs. J. Bowse, Miss M. O'Rourke, Miss E. Woods and Miss S. O'Brien. The hostesses were Misses McCarthy, Burchill, Nolan, McKuskey, Bucary and Lawton.

Big Beat for I. N. S. on Reparation Changes

The Boston American and other newspapers served by the International News Service scored a 36-hour beat on the important announcement that the allies were preparing to make changes in the reparation clauses of the peace treaty to make it easier for Germany to sign.

An exclusive dispatch from John Edwin Nevin, International News Service correspondent at Paris, made the first announcement Wednesday afternoon. Another press association carried the news for the first time in this morning's papers.

WELCOME FLEET OF SUBMARINE CHASERS

Twenty-three submarine chasers of the American overseas fleet were heartily greeted by Boston today. Many New England officers and men were among their gallant crews.

The twenty-three which arrived here, to undergo repairs at Charlestown Navy Yard, are part of the convoy which arrived at Charleston, S. C., on May 14 after invaluable war service in fighting the German U-boat fleet in European waters. Six of them served with the Adriatic Division in Austrian waters. Others were from bases at Plymouth, Eng., and Queenstown, Ire.

Those coming to Boston Harbor came through the Cape Cod Canal. They negotiated the passage of the inland waterway without damage. It took nice seamanship to bring the twenty-three "chasers" through the canal without a rub. On account of heavy fog they lay off the Sandwich shore at the eastern end of the canal through the night, getting underway for Boston early in the day.

"FOUNDERS' DAY" AT ROXBURY LATIN SCHOOL

"Founders' Day" at the Roxbury Latin School was celebrated today with a three-session program. Morning exercises were held in the school hall, with Robert H. Gardiner, president of the board of trustees, presiding, and Lieutenant-Colonel Hugh Cabot of Boston, recently with the British medical service. There were clarinet and cello solos by Paul and Kenneth Reardon respectively, both of the senior class. A baseball game between alumni and the school nine took place in the afternoon on the Seaver street grounds. This evening will be "Roxbury Latin Night" at the Pops.

2 CHELSEA BOYS HELD FOR $1500 CLOTH THEFT

One Also Accused of Stealing Auto Tire and Assault With Revolver

Adam Baer, seventeen, of Medford street, and Stanley Tofafcuyski, nineteen, of Front street, both of Chelsea, were arrested by the police of that city today charged with breaking and entering in the night time the tailor shop of Hyman Orloff, No. 18 Everett avenue, and the larceny of cloth valued at $1,500.

Young Baer was also charged with the larceny of an automobile tire, the property of Miss Dorothy Ford of Malden. As a result of the story told by his companion, a third charge of assault with a loaded revolver was placed against him.

The boys were arrested in their homes by Inspector William Gaillac, Special Officer John Bartley and Patrolmen Walter Barden and William O'Connor of the Chelsea police, who claimed to have recovered all the stolen cloth in the home of Baer. They also found, they stated, an automobile tire which they claim was stolen from the machine of Miss Ford while it was standing on Fifth street, Chelsea.

Aofarcuyski, although the older of the two, told the police that he was dominated by the other boy. He declared that he was awakened from sleep by Baer and asked to accompany him to the tailor shop. When he refused he said Baer pointed a loaded revolver at him and threatened to shoot. Fearing for his lige, Tofafcuyski said he accompanied Baer in an automobile to the tailor shop, to which they secured entrance through a skylight.

RELATIVES APPEAL BROOKLINE MAN'S WILL

Several relatives have filed appeals in the Norfolk County Probate Court at Dedham against the allowing of the will of the late Henry H. Robinson of Brookline, who died November 24, 1917, leaving his entire estate of $75,000 to a stepdaughter, Miss Edith B. Robinson of No. 14 Marion street, Brookline. Judge James H. Flint of the Norfolk Probate Court, on April 8, allowed the will. Francis Hollis of Somerville, Charles F. Robinson of Reading, Florence F. Lawrence of Fitchburg, Iona S. Robinson of Somerville and Richard Otis Adams of Delphos, O., are the ones who have appealed.

SHERIFF HELD BLAMELESS BY COUNCILLORS

Prison Committee at Jail Sees Barney and Views Conditions

Captain Matthew J. Daly and Special Officer William Frazier of Hanover street police station.

The identification by the hat salesman was remarkable, in that the man first named Miss O'Brien when she was back towards him. The girl, with eight other girls and women, was in a room where the light was noon too good. They were ranged in line, facing away from the salesman as he entered the room.

IDENTIFIED BY SALESMAN.

The salesman glanced at the row of backs and, without hesitation, walked up to one of the girls and said: "This is the girl to whom I sold the hat." The girl turned around. The salesman confirmed his identification when he saw her features. She was Miss O'Brien.

The hat was sold to her, the salesman said, on Tuesday, the day Barney made his escape from jail.

The identification by the hat salesman, as the police view it, places the girl in the position of assisting Barney after his sensational escape from Charles street jail on Tuesday, as she provided Barney with an article of dress whose absence would be noticeable if he went outdoors.

Patrolman Montgomery, who was one of the two Brighton officers who went to the rear of No. 1412 Commonwealth avenue to cut off any attempt by Barney to escape that way, not only identified Miss O'Brien by her features and general figure, but also identified her outer garments as corresponding to the outer garments worn by the girl who came to the rear door of the block with Barney, then disappeared under pretext of looking for the janitor to identify Barner as "Curry."

COUNCILLORS AT JAIL.

The Committee on Prisons of the City Council visited the jail today and after interviewing Barney exonerated Sheriff Kelliher and his assistants. It was the semi-annual visit to the jail.

The visitors included Chairman James A. Watson of the Committee on Prisons, and Councillors McDonald, McLaughlin, Moriarty and Collins, with President Francis J. W. Ford ad Councillor Daniel W. Lane.

Barey appeared before the committee in the executive office and offered to tell his story. He assured his hearers, however, that it would be identical with the one he told yesterday. He then declared that the sheriff had treated him with every courtesy, after which he was excused.

The following statement was later issued by the committee:

"After visiting Charles street jail and interviewing the prisoner, Barney, the committee adopted a vote of confidence in the sheriff ad further voted that any reflection upon his integrity as an official was idle. The committee further voted that they indorsed in full the sheriff's policy of allowing recreational facilities being continued because of the humanitarian aspects.

"The committee now awaits a plan and specifications being made by the sheriff to prevent a similar occurrence and the committee will consider this when it is submitted."

Plans for a higher wall all around the jail were also considered by the committee.

MAY INVOLVE OTHERS.

Barney's escape and subsequent thirty-one hours of liberty have been thoroughly gone into. Sheriff Kelliher courts the widest possible investigation and is leaving no stone unturned himself to bring about the arrest and conviction of any and all concerned in the daring scheme.

Everything which has come to light points in the direction of persons more or less intimate with the automobile stealing industry as being concerned about having Barney at liberty. These persons would willingly give large sums to insure his being at large and sealing his lips.

Not all of those concerned with this phase of the case are of the underworld. On the contrary, one is a man whose station in life is of the sort that attracts favorable notice. Several of the others were in official positions, places where friendship with automobile thieves might prove profitable.

In fact it is openly asserted that some of these men, under the guise of respectability, were vitally interested in automobile stealing. Some of them might even be charged with theft, or at least with receiving stolen goods. Others were plain out and out thieves, who cared not for Barney's arrest or his subsequent words.

MYSTERY DRIVER KNOWN.

Sheriff Kelliher and Deputies Casey and Doherty working on the case, have unearthed a startling series of facts. They have discovered the identity of the man who drove the car in which Barney made his getaway from Eaton street following his run from the place on the wall over which he dropped.

They have also learned that the escape was not planned on the spur of the moment. They know that on Sunday and Monday of this week an automobile was in Eaton street for more than an hour each afternoon. They have also learned that in this automobile were a girl and a man. A woman has positively identified the picture of Marion O'Brien as being that of the woman in the car on those days.

Minimum Wage for Universalist Ministers

The minimum wage for ministers is here. The Massachusetts Universalist Association in convention at Salem voted that single clergymen of that denomination in this State receive a minimum of $1,200 a year, while married ministers are to get $1,500 a year and rent.

For each child in his family, up to three, the minister is to get an extra $200 a year. The association indorsed a world peace league, and went on record as opposed to the repeal of war-time prohibition.

These officers were elected: Rev. Clarence R. Skinner of Tufts College, president; Jeremiah Foster of Gloucester, vice-president; Rev. George E. Leighton of Boston, secretary; A. Ingham Bicknell of Boston, treasurer.

The Universalist Woman's Missionary Society, meeting at the same time, elected Rev. Nancy Smith of Beverly, president.

NINE BODIES IN EXPLOSION RUINS

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 23.—Firemen, police, soldiers and volunteer rescuers searching in the smoldering ruins of the Douglas Starch Works, the $3,000,000 plant wrecked by a "dry dust" explosion, had recovered the bodies of nine employes at an early hour today.

It is feared many of the score or more reported missing were caught in the ruins of the building and killed. Fifty persons were injured. It is feared ten will die.

Property loss at the plant is estimated at $1,500,000, while nearby buildings were damaged to the extent of $500,000.

At the time of the explosion just after the day shift had been relieved, 150 persons were in the building. Fire which started almost immediately following the explosion trapped many of those in the burning building, and it is believed that when a check-up is completed of those known to have been in the building at the time of the explosion, the death list will be greatly increased.

Many caught in the building were severely injured and were rushed to hospitals, private dwellings and to their homes. Until these are all accounted for, officials of the company say any estimate of the killed is "mere guesswork."

Besides the employes injured, a score or more citizens in the vicinity of the factory sustained minor injuries from glass and debris which was showered over a radius of several blocks by the explosion.

Several large water mains were destroyed by the explosion, seriously handicapping firemen in their efforts to extinguish the blaze.

LEGION'S AIMS IN VISION TO CUTLER

Brookline Man Writes the American of His Hopes for Hero Organization

What the American Legion means to George C. Cutler, Jr., of Brookline, delegate from Massachusetts to the St. Louis caucus of the Legion, is described in the following letter to the American. With the letter is an announcement of a mass meeting to be held next Monday at 8 p. m. in the Brookline Town Hall, at which General Sherburne will preside and Colonel Herbert will speak.

Mr. Cutler is temporary secretary of the organization committee of the Brookline post of the Legion. His letter follows:

"While pondering on the hopes and purposes of the American Legion, I had a vision. I was on a great height looking over a vast desert, barren and bare. At one end of the desert all was dark and threatening; and at the other end was a great and glorious light shining down upon a beautiful land. Over this land, in brilliant letters, blazed the legend, 'The Brotherhood of Man—Freedom, Justice and Truth.'

"Upon the desert, marching toward the light, was a vast concourse of eager and earnest young men. Their faces, shining with hope and faith, were lifted up toward the light. Each had a drawn sword in his hand, raised on high. They marched in company square, and in the middle of the square moved a beautiful woman, dressed in splendid robes of red, white and blue, surrounded by forty-eight glorious children.

"The desert was covered with jackals and wolves, hungering to destroy this wonderful woman and her children; but the young men, numbering more than four millions, with their great strength and strong swords, kept off the scavengers. As the vision passed the vanguard of the vast concourse was entering into the light."

FACTORY NURSES VISIT INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

Factory nurses from big industrial establishments all over the east visited local plants today as a feature of their convention under the auspices of the National Civic Fderation. About 100 women nurses, led by Mrs. McNamara, field secretary, and Mrs. F. L. Ames spent the morning inspecting the Waitt & Bond cigar factory on Columbus avenue, Roxbury. In the afternoon the visitors went to the Waltham Watch Factory.

on the Atlantic route in an attempt to obtain further information.

Hawker's position, it was said at the offices of the Sopwith Company, was exactly what it should have been early Monday between 900 and 1,000 miles from St. John's.

London, May 23.—The Daily Mail has announced that its $50,000 prize, which was to go to the first flier to cross the Atlantic, will go to the heirs of Harry Hawker and his navigator, Grieve, if the two daring aviators are dead.

Seas Too Rough for NC-4 to Attempt Lisbon Flight Today

Washington, May 23.—The NC-4 will not set sail from Ponta del Gada for Lisbon today.

Admiral Jackson in a dispatch filed at 5 a. m., Washington time, informed the Navy Department that the seas were too rough to permit Commander Read to get away on the fourth leg of his trans-Atlantic flight today.

A dispatch filed an hour earlier stated the weather conditions were unfavorable, the seas being rough and a heavy wind blowing, with little possibility of a change in less than twelve hours. The second message, however, stated definitely that the flight was off for today.

NEW BEDFORD STRIKERS ENGAGE ROSS AS AGENT

New Bedford, May 23.—The striking stationary engineers, whose cessation of work threw 30,000 mill workers out of employment in this city have engaged ex-Senator Samuel Ross to represent them, it was announced today. No conferences have been arranged as yet, however, and nothing definite along this line could be secured from the employers. Governor Coolidge still forbids the arbitration board to visit this city, declaring that New Bedford is capable of handling the situation. The engineers went on strike for increases without waiting for the general increase which has been promised mill workers. According to the textile workers, the engineers' action was inspired by their desire to secure two increases.

"ROMEO" KEYS RETURNS TO BOSTON TO CLAIM 19-YEAR-OLD FIANCEE

CALLS IN THE AID OF DOCTOR, LAWYER AND ALIENIST

Determination to wed Miss Florence Girardin of No. 67 Romsey street, Dorchester, in spite of every obstacle, was reiterated today by sixty-three-year-old "Romeo" Keys, who is in Boston to establish his sanity preparatory to marrying the nineteen-year-old elevator operator whom he met last November at the Harvard Club.

Keys is stopping at the Boston Tavern under the name of "John C. Baker," following his dramatic escape from a sanitarium at Flint, Mich., on May 10. He occupies room 52, the bath of which opens on a fire escape, which Keys says "comes in handy" in avoiding people whom he does not care to see.

"I've already used the fire escape on one occasion during the past two weeks," Keys told an American reporter today.

Miss Girardin is meanwhile occupied with the completion of her trousseau in anticipation of the wedding, which, she declares, will make her the June bride of John Baker Keys, Harvard graduate and scion of a prominent Cincinnati family. Keys is a classmate of Charles Sumner Bird of Walpole, the well-known Progressive leader.

When seen today in his room at the Boston Tavern, Keys was confident of the speedy culmination of his "elevator romance" and predicted that the guardianship under which his family have placed him would be legally removed within a few weeks at the most.

"I love Miss Girardin with all the fervor of a younger man. I do not anticipate that the difference in our ages will prove any barrier to our happiness," declared Keys. "Older men than I have married and had children and been made happy by a sensible young wife.

EXPECT TO BE HAPPY.

"That's the reason I expect to be happy—Miss Girardin is such a sensible and healthy specimen of true womanhood.

"They tell me that she is beneath me in social standing. That makes no difference with me. I am not marrying to suit my sisters. If I married 'in my own circle,' as they tell me to, I would probably get a spineless invalid for a wife and have to surround her with nurses, servants and doctors for the remainder of my days.

"The issue from such a union would probably be sickly and cause additional expense, and—where would my happiness be then?

"No sir-ee! None of such good-for-nothing 'society girls' for me. I want a wife, not an invalid, when I am married.

"Now Miss Girardin is, as I said before, a sensible young girl. She can cook—and what is more—so can I in a pinch.

"If the worse comes to the worst, we need not be dependent upon cooks and housekeepers. We can both make the best of things. That is pretty well demonstrated by the fact that while I was kept incommunicando from Thanksgiving Day to January 9 at the Cincinnati General Hospital, Miss Girardin remained loyal to me, although never a letter passed between us.

"She has been an inspiration to me during my fight for the right to marry whom I please. She is a noble girl and will make a true wife.

DIVORCE PROMISED.

"But, should we not [illegible] happy as we believe we shall [illegible] have told Miss Girardin that she can secure a divorce from me at any time. I believe in second marriages, and would be the last man in the world to want to keep Miss Girardin tied to an oldish man like myself if she demanded the society and friendship of a man of her own age.

"I have loved two women already in my lifetime. One was the daughter of a Southern colonel—and a deuced little rebel she was, too. She gave me the mitten after I had courted her for some time.

"The other girl is dead. She was the daughter of a well-to-do Cincinnati family, and I thought surely that some day we would be wed. But the harsh hand of fate took her from this earthly life, many, many years ago. This time I am convinced I have made no mistake, and, the fates and the law permitting, we shall soon be man and wife.

"I have a really human attorney in the person of William J. Kelly of No. 40 Court street. He is the real stuff and tells me if I obey his instructions and keep my mouth shut he will be able to secure my release in short order, now that I am in New England.

"I have been to see a doctor and am pronounced physically perfect.

CONSULTING ALIENISTS.

"Today I shall be in conference with the best alienists in New England, who, I believe, will give me the certificate as to my sanity which I desire. If I am crazy, then the whole world is crazy. Because the world is sane I am sane, because I am a man of the world."

Keys was anxious that the New England public think of him in his true light as a man of business—not an idle "club-man," as he has been dubbed hitherto.

"I was for many years the proprietor and manager of my own business, the Ohio Valley Press at Cincinnati. I printed the revised statutes of the State of Ohio and the Pharmacopoeia of the Eclectic Medical College, among other important commissions. I was for years a member of the Pen and Pencil Club, which afterward became the Cuvier-Press Club of Cincinnati," declared Keys.

Here is an account of Keys' troubles as related by himself:

"I was accused October 22, 1918, in an indictment to the Probate Court, of being a lunatic, unable to care for myself or my possessions, by my sister, Alice and her husband, Howard C. Holister. I had no notice, legal or otherwise, nor did I know of it until I read in a Boston paper on the morning of November 24, 1918, that Edgar Stark had been appointed my guardian (a man I had never met, as far as I can remember); that he was at the Hotel Touraine with detectives to bring me to Cincinnati, although I thought I was a citizen of Massachusetts with every intent, having a domicile rented for a year in Brookline; having registered from Boston whereever I went; having with intent failed to register from Cincinnati for the November election; having arranged to enter the employ of the Warren Brothers Company in Boston, as shown on my stationery; having requested that my membership in certain clubs in Cincinnati be changed to the non-resident list.

FLED TOWARD CANADA.

"I fled on that morning, hoping to reach Canada beyond any Federal jurisdiction; was arrested in Newburyport and kidnaped from there by a man calling himself Charley Ryan and another detective by, as I am informed, the order of my guardian. Was taken to the Washington Home for Inebriates, in Boston. I escaped, was again arrested and kidnaped to the same institution. On the following day I was forcibly removed by Charley Ryan and a man calling himself Burns into a limousine and taken by devious roads to South Framingham, where they told me they had flagged the 2 p. m. B. & A. train to take me to Cincinnati.

"I was followed by my fiancee, Miss Florence Giradin of Boston, her brother and her attorney. The latter demanded of my abductors to show by what right they were taking me against my will. They failed to produce any legal proof, were threatened with arrest and slunk away.

I found that an attachment had ben made in Cincinnati, New York and Boston, depriving me of all use of my money and property. Was advised by my business associates and counsel, Messrs. George and Ralph R. Warren, and Attorneys Head, Crafts and Kelley that I had better at once temporarily return to Cincinnati to remove these unlawful interferences with my estate and person, be I a resident of Massachusetts or Cincinnati. I followed their advice, and on arrival at Cincinnati was arrested by two deputy sheriffs by order of John R. Homes, Director of Public Safety, who was the attorney for my sisters, and Judge Hollister, contrary to the law of Cincinnati (as I am informed).

ORDERED TO HOSPITAL.

"Taken to the Probate Court and then ordered taken to the Cincinnati General Hospital. I went there by advice of my counsel, Clyde P. Johnson and Charles Williams, on the understanding that I would not be confined there over twenty days, and probably a shorter time. Was interned there in ward 1, male, from November 28 (Thanksgiving) until about the 9th of January, some forty-three days.

"During all of that time I was deprived of my freedom, subjected to the restraint given to lunatics, D. T.'s, epileptics and other violent cases. Was greatly impaired in mind and body, deprived of liberty, never allowed outside exercise. All my letters were held by the authority of the hospital, or other persons unknown, and received no mail from any source from the 30th day of November. I finally was taken to the Probate Court, who adjudged me as a maniac depressive.

"My guardian, Mr. Stark, was removed, as I am informed, because he was illegally appointed, and I was allowed to select another guardian in the person of my attorney, Mr. Clyde P. Johnson. Came to the Good Samaritan Hospital under the direction of Dr. Hoppe, by advice of counsel, where I have been up to date. (3/15/19). During all this time, being in my normal health, both mentally and physically, I have suffered great distress of mind and body.

"My understanding with Judge Luders and Dr. Hoppe was, that following the treatment and direction of the latter, he wouldn as soon as he felt warranted, return me to the Probate Court, and that Judge Luders would then dismiss me and my guardian, so that I would be as free as I had been prior to my arrest and incarceration, and adjudged free of any mental diseases.

STILL LOVES KEYS, SHE SAYS.

Miss Girardin, who has kept closely in touch with her aged fiance since he was kidnaped last November, declared today that her affection for Keys has never wavered and that he was "all her heart could wish." "I expect to be very happy as his wife," she added. "The course of true love never did yet run smooth, according to the old saw, so I suppose the obstacles placed in the way of our romance are the best possible tests of our devotion to each other. It is certainly true that 'love laughs at locksmiths,' for Mr. Keys had to flee the sanatorium where he was under close surveillence in order to return to Boston and to me.

"He has all the qualities that any girl could wish in a husband, not the least of which is a sunny disposition," she said. "I love him devotedly."

AVOID MEN WITH PAST, 'ANGEL' GIRL SAYS

New York, May 23.—Even the unclean flavor of the divorce court must be an acceptable choice when unutterable humiliation is the only alternative.

Such is the conviction of Mrs. Violet B. Ellicott, lately known wherever artists gather as "The Girl with the Angel Face." And such alone persuaded her to the action which yesterday ended in her divorce from owner, of No. 1 Broadway. The decree was granted by Justice Callaghan who gave to Mrs. Ellicott the custody of their two beautiful children, Marylyn, who is eleven, and Marguerite, eight.

On the veranda of her home at No. 1030 Eighty-fourth street, Brooklyn, surrounded with the fragrance and verdure of Spring, Mrs. Ellicott told a story that mirrored the twelve years of her wedded life in this manner:

"Girls are so foolish to let their silly young heads be turned with the mad love-making of men who have far outlived their youth. I was just a crazy little thing to marry a man with the past Mr. Ellicott had. I knew all about it, too. It shows how seductive the attentions of a man of the world can be. He dazzled me with his splendors.

"LOATHES DIVORCE."

"I knew he had been divorced and I loathed the idea of divorce, too. I have loathed it all my life. But the veil of romance was too rosy, and I wouldn't think of it much. Oh, I should have known better. But it is too late now and I have paid and paid for my folly with every day of the last five years.

"When I first thought of divorce I couldn't bear the idea, mainly because of the children. I knew how bad it would be for them. I could hear their playmates at school jibing, 'Your mamma is divorced.' But what alternative did I have. Their father flaunted his shame in their very faces, almost. They were riding with me one afternoon out here in Bay Ridge when he passed us in a beautiful automobile with a woman at his side. We all knew her. The children had seen her a thousand times. She had visited in our home.

"My husband used to telephone me at all hours of the night, or morning, to meet him at the subway with the car. I didn't have a chauffeur and often I have gone for him at 1 o'clock, 2 o'clock, or maybe 3 o'clock in the morning. He was glib with excuses. Now I know that many times he came right from her to me.

CANNOT JUDGE RIVAL.

"I do not wish to criticize this girl. I cannot know what has prompted her to do this thing, and certainly I could not judge her. But I could not bear the shame my husband was putting on me. If he had only come to me openly and told me he loved some one else, that he no longer was happy with me, I gladly and willingly would have released him. I had no desire to keep him chained to me."

Mrs. Ellicott led the way around the big green lawn to a great white cage where a hundred burnished pigeons were just snuggling down for the night. Wisteria climbed over a gnarled apple tree in one corner, and the skylight barely peeped through a huge white canopy of dogwood blossoms.

Brand New Sport at Wellesley; It's Volley Ball

Miss Ruth Reynolds of Wellesley is acting as coach for the new sport of volley ball, which has been organized at Wellesley this Spring. The sport has received an enthusiastic enrollment from the students, who are spending more than the required time to perfect themselves in the new form of athletics.

The student captains who are in charge of the volley ball teams are: Marion Davies, '22; Katherine Morss, '22; Harriet Eastman, '22, and Ruth Metzger, '21. As the sport is so new the teams have not been picked according to classes, but the usual method of a team for each of the four classes will be started next Fall.

Miss Reynolds graduated from Wellesley in 1918 and is now on the staff of the hygiene department. She has always taken part in college athletics.

SPURNS MOTHER WHO TRIED TO GUIDE HER

Because her mother objected to her close friendship with a married man, the father of three children, Miss Marie I. Curry, twenty-four, a dancing teacher formerly of Dedham, left home and publicly spurned her mother in court. The latter scene took place at the divorce trial of Mrs. Alva J. Kessler, who was granted a decree against Fred J. Kessler by Judge Brown in Superior Court, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and non-support.

Miss Curry was the principal witness. She testified to giving Kessler dancing lessons at reduced rates, going to theatres and dances with him, and receiving him in her home until her parents made "violent objection." She left her home early in March and had not lived there since.

She knew that Kessler was married and a father when he first became attentive to her, she admitted.

As Miss Curry was leaving the witness stand her mother approached her. Miss Curry ignored her and turned to a court officer, saying:

"I do not want her to be allowed to talk to me. I have nothing to say to her."

According to testimony, Kessler fox-trotted and one-stepped with Miss Curry while his wife stayed at home; entertained Miss Curry lavishly while his wife took in washing to support herself and their three children; and slept in a steam-heated room while she slept in a cold room and the little ones in an unfurnished attic.

Josephine Kessler, sixteen, one of the children, testified that she had once crawled in through a bathroom window and had seen her father shake and ill-treat her mother.

After testifying, Miss Curry was recalled to the stand, but her examination by Mrs. Kessler's attorney was halted by Judge Brown when it was learned that the suit was uncontested. The question of alimony was left open.

TWO WOUNDED IN GLOUCESTER GUN FIGHT

Gloucester, May 23.—Discovery early today of Frank Thomas, twenty-five, in a house on Western avenue occupied by two married women resulted in a revolver fight in which the husbands of both women were wounded. Thomas was arrested on a warrant charging assault and battery, which charge may be changed to assault with intent to kill.

The husbands, John Benson and James Chadwick, will recover. In the house besides Mrs. Benson and Mrs. Chadwick were the mother of one of the husbands and the mother-in-law of the other.

Benson was shot in the left arm, while a bullet "grooved" Chadwick across the chest, missing the heart by about an inch.

Chadwick also charges that after he fell he was kicked by Thomas. The police have been unable to get any detailed statements of the happenings at the house, but it is charged that when Thomas was called to the door he fired through the window at Benson and Chadwick.

The decision reverses one by Justice Drysdale of Halifax in the Spring of 1918, placing the blame on the Mont Blanc.

FILES $75,000 ATTACHMENT ON WOMAN

Mrs. Carrie I. Wood of Cambridge Adds Chapter in Marital Affairs

Mrs. Carrie I. Wood of Cambridge, wife of Ralph A. Wood, filed a $75,000 attachment in the Middlesex Registry of Deeds at East Cambridge today against Mabel Townsend, also known, the attachment papers said, as Mrs. Ralph A. Wood, as M. W. Wood and as H. A. Wood.

Mrs. Carrie I. Wood had previously filed a suit for divorce against Ralph A. Wood, with an attachment for $50,000 on his property.

On May 19 Ralph A. Wood was arrested at an apartment in an exclusive section of North Cambridge by the Cambridge police, accompanied by detectives, on a complaint charging him and a woman mentioned as "Jane Doe" with a statutory offense. The woman was not found by the police. Wood is scheduled for a hearing in Cambridge District Court Wednesday on the police charge.

A petition has been filed in the Equity Court at East Cambridge by Mrs. Carrie I. Wood for an order restraining her husband from interfering with her affairs or molesting her. Mrs. Wood said that she went to Cambridge with her husband and twenty-year-old son, Horace, last January; that her husband was away from home much and that she learned that he had another apartment, where he was living with another woman as his wife.

Mrs. Wood continued in her petition that she was afraid of her husband, so had chain bolts put on the doors of their home. She said Wood broke down the door May 17 and forced his way into the home.

Miss Fortier was employed in the ordnance department. Major O'Bryan, originally of Mooleyville, Ky., but more recently of Chicago, has been in France more than a year with the transportation branch of the supplies division.

BATTLE-SCARRED HEROES ARE ENLISTING AGAIN

Camp Devens, May 23. — Several overseas veterans with the marks of machine gun wounds on their bodies were among the twenty-nine men enlisted in the regular army recruiting office here. Eight were from Lawrence. Captain J. C. MacDonald, stated that 700 men have been enlisted by this station. A company of infantry will give a military drill in Lowell to the music of the Camp Devens Band and a medical detachment will demonstrate first aid.

WIRE MEN VOTE NATION-WIDE STRIKE

Threaten Paralysis of Service Unless Demands Are Granted

Washington, May 23.—The great majority of telegraph and telephone workers in the United States have voted in favor of a nation-wide strike, according to word received here from S. J. Konenkamp, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union.

The counting of the ballots which has been under way for several weeks has been completed, Konenkamp says.

"A telegraph and telephone strike is near at hand," the "get ready" order to the Washington local declares. "The great majority of the workers engaged in the industries have voted to strike. The Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have completed their strike vote and are now making a final effort to reach a peaceful solution.

"Should this fail the date for a strike will then be set."

Managers, supervisors, clerks, operators, mechanics, linemen and inside and outside wire men are said to have indicated their readiness to quit their posts at the first call.

The demands of the union are set forth as follows:

1—The right to belong to a labor union without any restriction and no interference with legitimate trade union activities.

2—The right of collective bargaining through the trade unions representing the telegraph and telephone workers and not through company-controlled associations organized to defeat the aims of the workers.

3—The reinstatement of all workers discharged in 1918 and 1919 for membership in a trade union or for legitimate trade union activities.

4—Compensation for time lost by all workers who were discharged for the reason given in the foregoing paragraph.

5—An increase in pay sufficient to meet the increased cost in living since 1915.

6—Standardization of salaries with a wage scale which will stop the individual wage reductions now being put into effect.

7—Rules governing working conditions whereby the rights of the workers will be defined and guaranteed which is the only means of stopping petty tyranies and persecutions now being practiced in many sections of the country.

FAILURE THREATENS DRIVE OF "SALLIES" HERE

Boston is slowing up again in the Salvation Army drive. Only a whirlwind finish for the next three days will put this city over the top with the $400,000 which is its quota.

At the beginning of the last four days of the eight-day campaign contributions for only $152,848 had been reported. In other words, half the campaign is over, and far from half the quota is subscribed.

For the first time Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, in charge of the campaign, expressed some discouragement today. He was still confident that the city would not suffer the disgrace of deserting the Salvation Army after what the boys of the Yankee Division said of it, but regretted that apathy should exist in some quarters.

The people of wealth are failing the Salvation Army in this crisis, according to Brigadier-General Cole, and they have made comparatively little effort to help out in the drive for funds. The "man in the street," the man with little means, has done much better, but much still remains to be done.

REPORTS DISCOURAGING.

"Never since the drive started last Monday have we raised our daily quota of $50,000," said General Cole. "Still, I have felt confident. The report this morning, though, of Alfred L. Aiken, president of the National Shawmut Bank and treasurer of the campaign fund, is discouraging."

Since Treasurer Aiken's statement of contributions up to 6 o'clock last night—$137,274—checks received by mail, reports of yesterday's street collections, theatre collections and collections by the Elks amounted to only $15,574, which gave the total of $152,848.

Today is Elks' Day. Everyone of the 2,600 members of the Boston Lodge, with all other agencies of the drive, started work almost at sunrise.

Accompanied by Mrs. Francis J. O'Hara, Jr., and the Salvation Army staff band, General Cole went to the fish pier. An enthusiastic rally was held there. The general spoke and auctioned off several doughnuts. Several of them sold for $50, many for $10. In all $800 was raised within an hour.

PELLETIER LENDS HAND.

The biggest feature of the Elks program today was the noon rally at Belleau Woods on the Common—what used to be Liberty Hall. District-Attorney Pelletier presided and, with other prominent Elks of Boston, called upon the immense crowds that gathered to "dig for the Sallies."

Logan L. McLean, president of the Massachusetts Elks Association, arranged the rally and besides himself and the district attorney the speakers included Judge Thomas H. Dowd, chairman of the Elks' committee of the drive; Judge Murray, Lieutenant-Governor Cox, Speaker Warner of the House, Registrar of Deeds Fitzgerald, State Treasurer Burrill, former Mayor Curley and E. Mark Sullivan.

Music at the noon rally was furnished by a band of seventy-five pieces, the bandsmen all volunteers for the Boston Musicians' Protective Union.

Another rally by the Elks will be held at Belleau Woods this evening from 7 to 9. The music will be by a naval band. Those who addressed the noon rally, with many other prominent men, will speak.

Several appeals in behalf of the drive were sent out this morning. One was from the New England Shoe and Leather Association, signed by its president, Harry L. Thayer, and its secretary, Thomas F. Anderson.

ASK AID OF CHURCHES.

Another appeal went out to the ministers of the city—ministers of every faith and creed. It was signed by General Cole and said, among other things:

"We appeal to you to devote part of your sermon on Sunday to telling of the Salvation Army as you know it. "Would it be possible for you to have a special collection taken up for the Salvation Army during the services on Sunday and forward the same to Alfred L. Aiken, treasurer, National Shawmut Bank Building?"

A third appeal came from Commander Evangeline Booth of the army. It set forth:

"With a determined grip upon the decadent saloons in various localities as they droop and die with the passing of John Barleycorn, and with a program for holding and serving the groups of thirsty patrons who shall henceforth learn to like boozeless bars, the Salvation Army has taken another stride forward, and is about to assert itself among the masses in big cities, where unrest among toilers is greatest.

RALLIES TONIGHT.

"We know of no greater service that can be rendered our government, or indeed to humanity at this moment than to confront and struggle with the great unrest. "We cannot do it all, but we can and will do our utmost, and to that end our program of humanitarian work for the future is now being shaped up. Every dollar coming into our hands in this drive must go for sensible relief."

This evening the following rallies will be held:

Central square, East Boston; Hyde square, Jamaica Plain; City square, Charlestown; Bowdoin street and Geneva avenue, Dorchester; Savin Hill and Dorchester avenues, Roxbury Crossing, Dorchester street and Broadway, South Boston; Codman square, Dorchester; Field's Corner, Dorchester; Andrews square, South Boston; St. Botolph street and Massachusetts avenue, Park square.

Tomorrow is "Doughnut Day." Thousands of doughnuts are going to be on sale.

GIRL WITH $2,375 GEMS HELD IN POLICE COURT

Marion Saunders, alias Barden, twenty-two, was held in $1,000 in police cour today pending an investigation of jewelry found upon her valued at $2,375, mostly diamonds. The police believe that it is stolen property, accumulated by the young woman while working as a servant girl at several places. Numerous letters of recommendation were found in her room on Columbus avenue, also a loaded revolver. The police believe most of the letters were written by herself.

S. O. S. Call to Police Frees Sleepy Man in Phone Booth

"For Heaven's sake, get me the police! I'm locked in!"

This call in the "small hours" today brought Sergeant Palmer of Station 11, Dorchester, to the telephone.

It developed that Joseph P. Walsh of Arlington lost his horse and wagon in Dorchester and went into Tessier's drug store on Savin Hill avenue, where he telephoned to the police and to his wife. Wearied with his day's work he sat on a stool and fell asleep. The proprietor, not seeing him, locked up and went home for the night.

Walsh awoke with a start and sent out an "S. O. S." The proprietor of the store was sent for and Walsh was released. In the meantime his "outfit" had been located in Milton and he drove home content. The horse had wandered away.

$20,000 SALARY CHECK REFUSED BY PATRIOT

Man Who Solved Gas Mask Problem for U. S. Turns Back Money

New York, May 23.—George C. Roeding refused a check for $20,000. "I don't want it," he said. "I never intended to accept a penny for doing what I could to help my country in time of war."

Captain W. E. Brophy, U. S. A., Chemical Warfare Division, is the man who had the check thrown back on his hands. He said:

"Mr. Roeding is a wealthy ranch owner, and he gave an invaluable idea and months of his own time to the government. And now he says he won't take a cent, although at one time the government owed him $100,000 in cash that he had advanced for the purchase of materials—materials to make ineffective the poison gas by which Germany attempted in vain to win the war."

EAVESDROPPING PAID.

Mr. Roeding's ranch is near Fresno, Cal. Shortly after this country entered the war he was in Washington and happeed to overhear two high officers of the army discussing means of overcoming the shortage in raw material for the manufacture of high absorbent charcoal, which is indispensable in the making of gas masks.

The tenor of the conversation was that the United States either would have to accept an inferior charcoal, which would not fully protect its solders, or would have to depend on the allies to furnish enough gas masks to protect American troops.

The next day Mr. Roeding was one of the first visitors to the offices of Colonel Bradley Dewey, one of the ranking officers of the Chemical Warfare Division. He said:

"Nut shells and fruits pits, which make the most highly absorbent charcoal, are being thrown away in California. You can get enough of them out there to win two or three wars."

GAVE 8 MONTHS OF TIME.

As a result, the government, up to the signing of the armistice, had secured 25,000 tons of fruit pits and nut shells for charcoal. Mr. Roeding himself had pledged himself to secure the remainder of the 1917 and all of the 1918 crops. He organized his own collection service and receiving and shipping stations. He devoted his time for more than eight months solely to the work.

Mr. Roeding undertook the work on a cost-plus basis and it was his profits that the $20,000 check represented.

RUTLAND FOOD STRIKERS ARE HEARD

Hospital Patients Charge Poor Quality and Scant Quantity

Worcester, May 23.—Poorly cooked food and careless treatment were charged against the management of the Rutland State Sanitarium at a hearing today by more than 100 patients.

The hearing was conducted by Dr. Arthur K. Stone, Simon Swig and Daniel L. Prendergast of the State trustees of hospitals for consumptives. They came from Boston at the request of Governor Coolidge, who received a round-robin from the inmates after they had gone on a one-day strike.

According to some of the inmates food was so scant that they were weakened because of insufficient nourishment. They alleged that they were not even given coffee. They were given little meat, so they averred, and just a mouthful of bread and butter.

The patients charged that they are deprived of all social life. They said that even the motion pictures have been denied them, that they were practically confined in the building and not given opportunity for social intercourse.

The charges are denied by the officials at the hospital. Dr. A. E. Emerson, superintendent, says the complaints are from men and women whose minds have been weakened because of their sickness. He declares they received plenty of good food.

REVOLT AT NEW SYSTEM.

Dr. Stone, in a statement just before the hearing opened, said that the strike was a protest against the new system of combatting tuberculosis.

"The old system of 'stuffing' the patients with food at all times regardless of their condition has been supplanted by a new and far more satisfactory system of scientific feeding," said Dr. Stone.

"The old idea was to 'stuff' the patients until they regained their normal weight and then to continue 'stuffing' them in the hope that they would put on weight and gain strength.

"The new idea is to 'stuff' the patients only until they regain normal weight and then to give them such food as will enable them to continue strong at that weight.

"It is my opinion that the patients rebelled because of that treatment."

HOSPITAL MENUS GIVEN.

To substantiate the claim that they are "feeding" the patients well the trustees today made public the menus of three days in the week beginning April 14, the last menus they have at hand. Here they are:

SUNDAY.

Breakfast—Grapefruit, pettijohn, jelly omelet, doughnuts, coffee, milk.

Dinner—Puree of tomato, roast beef, mashed potatoes, fruit jelly custard, sponge drops.

FRIDAY.

Dinner—Beef bouillon, baked halibut, mashed potatoes, pickled beets, coconnut pudding.

TUESDAY.

Breakfast—Cream of wheat, plain omelet, corn cake, coffee, milk.

Dinner—Beef bouillon, baked halibut, potatoes, butter beets, chocolate blancmange.

James M. Mead of Arlington to Superintend Construction of Welfare Centres for Army

James M. Mead of Arlington, State treasurer of the Knights of Columbus, leaves Sunday for Panama to superintend the construction, for the national K. of C., of two buildings, at either end of the canal zone, which are to be used as welfare centres for United States soldiers and sailors.

These buildings are to be erected at once, one at Cristobel, on the Atlantic side, and the other at Balboa, on the Pacific. They are to be of concrete and will cost in the vicinty of $40,000 each. They are to be so appointed and equipped as to meet the recreational, amusement and educational needs of the 25,000 men of the service who are practically isolated in the canal zone, and, it is expected, will prove an agency of great moral betterment. Moving picture theatres, libraries, shower baths, etc., will be included in these social centres, which will be at the disposal of all, regardless of creed.

Mr. Mead, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Mead, expects to be absent on this mission for two months. He is one of Arlington's most prominent citizens, a former president of the Board of Trade, a present member of the board of assessors and an energetic worker in all civic wartime activities.

HOME-MADE DIVING SUIT KILLS ITS INVENTOR

Wilbraham, May 23.—A home-made diving suit, invented for the purpose of searching for a motorcycle lost in the Chicopee River, caused the death by suffocation of Walter Slosek, twenty-three, of No. 34 Wilbraham road. The suit was made of oil cloth, an oil can being used for an air tank. For a helmet Slosek devised an arrangement similar to a gas mask, and attached a piece of rubber hose and a bicycle pump. He went to the woodshed to test it and never came back. His landlady, Mrs. Mary Sneezek, found the man's body on the floor.

Unitarian Protest Against Poland Outrages Is Applauded

Resolutions placing the Union of American Hebrew Congregations on record in favor of establishment of unassigned free pews in synagogues and elimination of minimum dues were adopted in the closing sessions of the twenty-sixth biennial convention in Boston.

M. D. Rosenberg of Washington, D. C., chairman of the committee on legislation, explained that under the constitution of the union it could not take action that would be mandatory.

The council endorsed the recommendation of the committee on legislation, with a further recommendation drafted by Judge Daniel P. Hays, to the effect that the council express its approval of the resolution and the ideas and principles therein presented, without attempting in any way to interfere with the autonomy of any congregation or the management and conduct of its affairs. It was voted that the question be made the subject of consideration by a committee to report to the next council.

JUDGE POINTS OUT EVIL.

Judge Hays expressed his belief that the assigned pew system is an evil, but recognized the difficulties with which some congregations would be confronted in its adoption.

Simon Wolf of Washington referred to the open doors of Catholic churches and their influence in building up that organization.

A resolution reported by the same committee looking to the creation of a social service department in connection with the synagogue was adopted without debate.

Resolutions were adopted thanking the Boston committee and all others who had contributed to the success of the council. President A. C. Ratshesky was given a rising vote of thanks for the impartial manner in which he had presided, and thanks were also expressed to the secretaries.

There was a burst of applause when it was announced that the American Unitarian Association had sent a cablegram to President Wilson protesting against the outrages in Poland, and that this action had been taken by the Unitarians before the matter had been called to their attention by the delegates from the Hebrew body.

NEW EXECUTIVE BOARD.

The names of A. C. Ratshesky and Jacob R. Morse appear among those of the newly-elected members of the executive committee. The other members are:

HUNDREDS FLEE FIRE SCANTILY CLOTHED

Three Alarms Sounded for Barrel Storehouse Blaze in Somerville

Awakened from slumber by Patrolman T. M. Sharry early today, more than one hundred Somerville families rushed scantily clad into the street, to find that their wooden tenement buildings were menaced by a three-alarm fire that did $5,000 damage, as estimated by the police, to the barrel storehouse of William J. Carrol, No. 123 Linwood street.

Patrolman Sharry discovered the fire and turned in the alarm. Then assisted by pedestrians, he aroused all the families in the neighborhood. The storehouse is located in the heart of a thickly populated section of Somerville.

With the residents out of danger, Patrolman Sharry turned his attention to the stable of J. W. Whitney, adjoining the burning building. He broke into the stable and led out three horses.

The blaze was one of the most spectacular ever seen in Somerville, and despite the late hour attracted the attention of hundreds. Prompt action by the fire department prevented its spread.

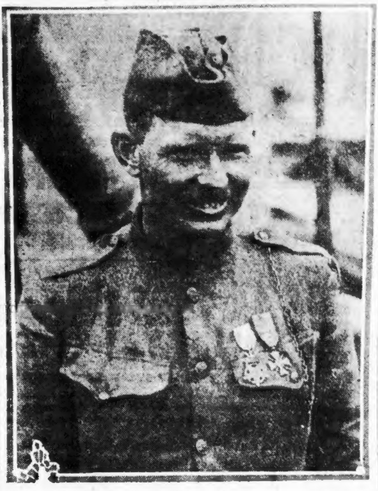
Killed 20 Germans, Captured 132 and Broke Up Attack of Entire Battalion

CHURCH ELDER, TERROR OF GERMANS IN BATTLE



Sergeant Alvin C. York of Pall Mall, Tenn., an elder of the Church of Christ, single-handed killed twenty Germans, captured 132 and silenced thirty-five enemy machine guns. The Rotary Club of Nashville has raised a fund of $50,000 with which it will purchase a farm for him and the Tennessee Society of New York has purchased a $2,000 Victory Note which will be presented him. Photograph copyrighted by International Film Service.

New York, May 23.—"Well, folks, ah reckon ah'll be goin' to bed."

A big man, red of hair and mustache and with unhurried brown-gravy eyes, rose from a lounge seat in a luxurious room off the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

He wore the stripes of a sergeant, and his manner was as easy and quiet as the sway of a mountain pine as he bade a soft spoken good night to a bevy of women and men who surrounded him.

FEW TURNED TO LOOK.

As he walked down "Peacock Alley" towards the elevator that was to carry him to his room on the fifth floor, scarce an eye was turned in his direction—for New York hotels are accustomed to close up views of Uncle Sam's big, handsome soldier boys.

But an indolent observer could not but wonder whether an estatic "Ah!" would not have swept the crowded indoor gallery if the hundreds who saw the big, red-headed sergeant had known that he was:

Sergeant Alvin C. York, Company G, 328th Infantry, Eighty-second Division, who, on Oct. 8, 1918, as Corporal York, killed twenty Germans, captured 132 prisoners, including a major and three lieutenants, put thirty-five machine guns out of commission and broke up an entire battalion which was about to counter-attack against the Americans on Hill 223 in the Argonne sector, near Chatel-Cherery.

There are the pictures:

The man whose rifle and automatic pistol barked out the greatest individual feat of the war—a feat that won him the D. S. C., the Croix de Guerre and the Congressional Medal of Honor.

WENT EARLY TO BED.

And the six-foot, red-haired, red-mustached giant who threaded his way through the lobby of the Waldorf towards the elevators and an early bed!

Contrast, drama, romance! Wow—it takes a war to bring it close to us, doesn't it?

Alvin York came back on the transport Ohioan.

He came back apparently unchanged from the Tennessee mountaineer who, until November 14, 1917, was living on a small-farm on Wolf River, Pall Mall, Fentress County, five miles from the Kentucky border.

On November 14 he joined the army at Camp Gordon, Georgia, a draft man, and became No. 1,910,421. At the time he was (and he says he hopes he still is) second elder in the Church of Christ and Christian Union at Pall Mall.

He went into the army against the mandates of his church and against the advice of his minister, Rev. R. C. Pile, and was classed as a conscientious objector. From the fastnesses of his native Blue Ridge Mountains and from the pulpit of which he had often preached, Elder York went to training camp and to the great adventure overseas.

"GOD WAS WITH ME."

The story of his marvellous feat (verified and certified) is known now to all America. But not the reasons for his conquest of death as he gave them. Quite simply he said:

"God was with me. That is why I am alive. I have shed much blood. I am sorry. But I no longer have any scruples against war—at least such a war as the one against Germany. I feel stronger spiritually than I ever did before. I don't believe any of us would have come out of this war without God's help. I think it was God behind the flags of the American army that brought us victory."

That was all he volunteered, this strong, thirty-one-year-old man of the mountains—"God was behind the flags of the American army."

"And now what?" one of those who dined with him asked.

WILL GO BACK TO MOTHER.

"Oh," he replied, "I must go back to Pall Mall. My widowed mother is there and my brother and three little sisters. I want to see them again and look after them."

"But now?"

"That is for the future to decide," he replied quietly. "You know when they picked us up and hustled us off to war I was working on the country road. I may go back to that," and a twinkle came into the gray brown eyes.

We have not attempted to transcribe the infinite softness of the Sergeant's speech—the Southern tones in "K'ounty." But the softness of tone is still there.

"What of romance?" he was asked. "Is there a girl who is waiting for you?"

The red pigment in his countenance became almost scarlet when he replied:

"Oh, no. I haven't any particular girl. I never thought of getting married. I like all the young women, but I have too many friends among them to pick out one."

ON FIVE-DAY FURLOUGH.

By official ukase of the Adjutant-General in Washington Sergeant York is to enjoy a furlough of five days.

When the returning hero was installed in his room next the presidential suite on the fifth floor of the Waldorf the first thing that greeted his eye was a framed picture of his mother.

He stood silent before it a few moments and then said simply:

"It has been some time since I saw her."

There was just a little drama later when a long distance talk was arranged between the Waldorf and the little grocery store at Pall Mall, Tenn. Mrs. York was in the grocery store, but her voice was almost inaudible. Her hero-son said sharply:

"I hope mother hasn't strained her throat trying to talk to me."

"Will you go into the ministry?" he was asked.

"My, I wish I had enough brains," was the reply. "You know, I have worked on the county road and I am a pretty fair blacksmith. But I'm afraid I couldn't preach the Gospel though I certainly would like to."

HOW WE DID IT.

Pressed for a brief account of the battle of Hill No. 223 (now officially termed "York Hill"), the sergeant said:

"I was a corporal then. I had sixteen men with me. We saw a large number of Germans at a gun nest on top of the hill. We charged. They came to meet us. In a twinkling six of our men were killed and three wounded. That left just eight of us. We were terribly outnumbered, but I didn't see any use surrendering.

"We had [illegible] rounds of ammunition for our rifles and automatics. I kept plugging away with both rifle and pistol and in a few minutes had killed eight Germans. I think I got more than twenty altogether.

"Most of the dead were machine gunners. That took the heart out of the rest and finally they threw up their hands in surrender. There were 132 of them, including a major. We took them back to our lines and turned them over to our superior officer.

ALL GIVE YORK CREDIT.

"He asked who was responsible for the capture and I told them that the survivors of our little party could tell him. To a man they said I had done all the fighting and deserved all the credit. They made affidavits and there was a lot of praise from everybody for me.

"I don't see, though, that I did anything unusual. I have always been a crack shot and after I decided my conscience would permit me to fight I fought the best I knew how. That is the whole story."

The whole story!

What a large packing house says on value—

IN A RECENT advertisement of probably the largest meat packing house in the country, discussing the cost of sirloin steak, is this statement:

"Also, the retailer who carries complete stocks, delivers to your door, and lets you run a charge account, has to get higher prices than the retailer who runs a 'cash and carry' store."

This statement needs no verification to the observant person. Many is the commuter who has noticed in his community the gradual disappearance of the expensively conducted store giving so-called "free service," and seen its replacement by the economically run store, where one pays for what one gets and gets what one pays for.

What is true of one business is true of all. A new era in the retail business has begun; in fact, is already well on its way.

We believe customers want service. But we do not believe in indiscriminate service, which is wasteful and unfair. We believe those who want services should pay for them; that others should not be asked to share these expenses.

One of the reasons for Filene Better Values lies in the fact that we have separated the cost of service from the cost of merchandise.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR ACID STOMACH

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion

Before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort.

Would Dress Her Like an Old Woman; Seeks Divorce

Reading, Pa., May 23.—Clothes may not make the lady, but they certainly makes the divorce court work overtime sometimes, as attested by two divorce suits filed here. The allegation that her husband wanted her to dress like an "old woman" so other men would pass her by is the basis of the suit of Mabel E. Heckman, who married Thomas Heckman twenty-one years ago in Allentown, while a razor operation, said to have been performed on his wife's best attire by Harry J. Bush, to the detriment of her matrimonial joy, is the background of a similar action taken by his spouse, Nettie C. Bush.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

LT.-COL. CASSIUS M. DOWELL.

Lieutenant Colonel Cassius M. Dowell, who went to France with the 26th Division as judge advocate by request of Major-General Edwards, is considered one of the brainiest men in the United States Army. He was General Crowder's right hand man in the early strenuous days of the execution of the selective service law. He helped prepare the selective draft regulations, had charge of printing and mailing these regulations and the necessary blank forms, at the rate of ninety tons a day, to all parts of the United States, Alaska, and all our insular possessions. Later he was entrusted with the appointment of all local and district boards in the name of the President of the United States.

Colonel Dowell hails from Illinois, where he was born thirty-nine years ago. Before the world war and prior to assignment to the 26th Division, he was in the United States regulars, being connected with the 17th and 11th Infantry. He saw service in the Philippines, Cuba and on the Mexican border.

In January, 1918, he was made chief of staff of the 26th Division, and remained in that capacity until the following June, when he was sent to the U. S. Army Staff College in France, remaining three months. He then returned to the 26th Division, with which he remained until the armistice, when he was sent to the Army of Occupation in Germany as judge advocate. He was recently called home for duty as executive chief in the office of the Judge Advocate General, Washington, D. C.

U. S. CASUALTIES ON ARMISTICE DAY DENIED

General Pershing Answers Queries; Says There Was No Needless Suering

Washington, May 23.—General John J. Pershing has reported to General P. C. March, chief of staff, that no cases are known of American soldiers being killed in fighting in France after the armistice went into effect on Nov. 11.

There had been rumors of American troops suffering unnecessary casualties on Armistice Day. Colonel George Harvey asked Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, to investigate. Senator Chamberlain put the question up to General March. The latter's reply to Senator Chamberlain follows:

"My Dear Senator—With further reference to your letter of Feb. 13 and my letter of Feb. 17, in which I advised you that General Pershing would be requested to furnish information you desired, I beg to give you his replies to your inquiry.

"After a full statement of the many reports called for from the commanding generals of the various armies and divisions, the inquiries addressed to the French and British missions and the search of records at his own headquarters, General Persing reaches the following con following conclusions:

"(A) Were any United States soldiers killed in fighting in France after order to cease firing at 11 o'clock, November 11, when armistice went into effect? Conclusions: No cases are known of any United States soldiers who were killed in ghting in France after order to cease firing at 11 a. m., November 11, when armistice went into effect. Probably there were no such casualties. In any event they could have occurred in very isolated cases only.

"(B) Was there any firing at any place along the American line in France after 11 o'clock, November 11? In the case of an isolated organization, ewhich did not receiv notification until 11:10 a. m. November 11, 1918, firing was continued until 11:30 a. m., November 11, 1918.

FOUGHT TO THE LAST.

"(C) Did the firing along the American line continue in full force up to 11 o'clock November 11? Conclusions: Firing along the American line continued in full force up to 11 o'clock November 11. In the case of the two American divisions serving wit hthe French army in Belgium different conditions existed and the firing was not continued in full force, due to the fact that no opposition was encountered to the continued advance.

"(D) Is the report true that officers in command of British and French forces ordered firing stopped as soon as they learned that the armistice was to go into effect at 11 o'clock November 11, 1918, that is, several hours before 11 o'clock on this date? Conclusions: There was no authorization for officers in command of French and British forces to order firing stopped as soon as they learned that the armistice was to go into effect.

"There is a possibility that such orders were given without authority by French commanders of small isolated bodies. No definite cases of the issuance of such unauthorized orders are, however, known.

QUOTES ORDER BY FOCH.

"(E) Were there military reasons for continuing the firing up to the very hour the armistice went into effect? Conclusions: There were military reasons for continuing the firing up to the very hour the armistice went into effect, and orders were issued from these headquarters to insure such action. These orders were dictated by the necessity for taking every opportunity to render certain the complete acceptance by the enemy of the armistice and were undoubtedly concurred in by the allied commander-in-chief, who, himself, issued orders to the same effect.

"With reference to question (E) General Pershing's reply includes a quotation of the orders of Marshal Foch, directing that the pressure be maintained along the whole front up to the last moment."

URGES BATHING BEACH NEAR CUNARD PIER

Has Support of All East Boston Citizens, Says Captain C. J. Fouhy

The proposal that the city of Boston establish a bathing beach at the foot of Lewis street, East Boston, near the Cunard docks, which is fathered by Representative Hearn of Ward 2, was today seconded by Captain Charles J. Fouhy, a former East Boston boy, who recently returned from nineteen months overseas service.

Captain Fouhy is the son of Mrs. Katherine Fouhy of No. 62 Haynes street, in what is known as the "first section" district. The movement to establish a recreation beach near the congested tenements of one of Boston's most populous areas is meeting with splendid support.

MAYOR THOUGHT IN FAVOR.

Mayor Peters, to whom Representative Hearn has addressed his appeal for the erection of a bathhouse and the establishment of a suitable beach fronting on the inside harbor, is believed to be in favor of the project. Scores of East Boston residents are known to be wholeheartedly for the undertaking, and are rallying new supporters to their ranks daily.

Captain Fouhy, who served as captain of the stevedores' battalion at St. Nazaire throughout the war, has returned to his former position in charge of the unloading of ocean liners at the East Boston docks. He is well known in East Boston, although living temporarily at No. 35 Billerica street, West End. Captain Fouhy said:

HAS WIDE SUPPORT.

"I am positive that the bathing beach project has the enthusiastic support of all the good people of East Boston. The children are wild over the prospect of salt water bathing on their side of the harbor, and the longshoremen themselves are a close second.

"The proposed bathhouse and beach offer looked-for relief for the large population of the section in the hot days ahead and I sincerely hope that it will meet with the approval of Mayor Peters."

Other East Boston residents who are working for the success of the proposition are Miss Katherine Daly and Mrs. George Mullen of No. 744 Bennington street, and Mrs. William Hay of Cottage street. It was through the efforts of these women, including Mrs. Fouhy, the wife of Captain Fouhy, that the park and recreation department was persuaded to place a swimming raft near the site of the proposed beach in 1917.

Now the citizens of the district want a beach and believe they are entitled to it as much as other thickly populated sections of Boston. It is planned to circulate petitions favoring the proposal in order to hasten action by the municipal authorities.

FORMER AIRMAN WEDS WIDOW OF GREAT BEAUTY

Clinton, May 23. — Lieutenant George W. Forrester of the 801st Aero Squadron, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Forrester, and Mrs. Mary A. Harobine of Holyoke, were very quietly married by the Rev. P. Lawson Cosman at the Baptist parsonage. After a brief wedding trip the couple are to reside in Holyoke, where the groom assumes his duties as superintendent of a paper mill on June 1.

Lieutenant Forrester is a graduate of M. I. T., enlisted in the air service nearly two years ago, and saw service in France for eighteen months. His bride is a widow of great beauty.

ROSLINDALE MAN HOME WITH TWO WAR HONORS

BIG FIREWORKS SHOW FOR FITCHBURG'S FOURTH

Fitchburg, May 23.—An immense display of fireworks on the summit of Rollstone Hill, the highest point in Fitchburg, July 4, under the direction of the city and such as Fitchburg has not had in twenty-five years is being considered by Mayor Frank H. Foss. The matter will be brought before the soldiers' welcoming committee which is working out plans for a celebration for the returned soldiers on Independence Day. The Mayor believes it would be a crowning close for an all day celebration.

Bedroom Window Holds Up Dozen Buildings

Worcester, May 23.—Because one window in a bedroom was not large enough, according to plans submitted to the Worcester Public Buildings Department, Charles F. Stevens of No. 655 Main street will not go ahead with plans to erect a series of twelve three-deckers. He says the man who drew up the building code for Worcester probably could not put seats into old chairs.

Worcester's City Council is now struggling with the task of so amending the building ordinances as to make it easier for people to build.

ALLEGE USE OF TAXIS FOR STRIKEBREAKERS

Worcester, May 23. — Striking molders of Worcester allege that the Coppus Engineering Company has a number of strike breakers at work and that the company takes these men to and from work in taxicabs in order to keep them away from pickets.

Strike sympathizers living near Park avenue hoot and howl at the strike breakers as they ride past.

BUILDING NOW A BOON, SAYS ARCHITECT LELAND

BUILD NOW!

Don't wait for a drop in prices that won't come. Build now and enjoy what you have built instead of waiting and hoping to enjoy it.

The war forced this government, or in other word YOU, to find out how best to build well and economically. The experience and knowledge are on tap for all of us to use. Then let us use it as soon as may be, for men need work—they need homes—BUILD NOW!

This is the advice of Thomas D. Leland, 2d, Boston architect, with offices at No. 185 Devonshire street, who held several important governmental positions at Washington during the war and who speaks with knowledge and authority.

Mr. Leland was vice-president of the United States Housing Corporation, assistant director of the United States Bureau of Industrial Housing, chief architect of the Shipping Board of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and architectural adviser of the Council of National Defense Committee of Industrial Housing Bureau.

BUILDING A BOON.

"Building is a civic duty that leads to the general betterment," Mr. Leland said in praising the American's BUILD NOW campaign. "Building will prove a boon and a blessing to the people—the workman, the builder, the financier—everybody with an interest in it, while property everywhere will be improved.

"A new world has been born in the anguish of war; a new spirit is quick in the hearts of men; those who cannot or will not see and adjust themselves to the new conditions, to the determination of the people for a more just, equal and better world will be left far behind. Changes that might have taken a thousand years have been forced upon us by the dire necessities of war. War has taught us what co-operation can do. What marvels cannot that same spirit accomplish in peace!"

Mr. Leland went to Washington in the Fall of 1917 when production was far behind and everyone was worried. His job was to find out what was keeping down production and how it could be quickened. In his first investigation ten shipbuilders testified that they had all the material they needed but could not hold the labor. They said if they could get 20,000 men steadily they would guarantee to increase their output 145 per cent. in the year.

"Study of the situation," said Mr. Leland, "showed that 90 per cent. of the trouble was due to labor turnover. In order to keep one man on the job the employer sometimes hired as many as six men. The workers finding no place to live in one place would move on to the next. The skilled mechanic, who was the most important factor in war production, wanted a decent house to live in, and his family with him if he was to stay permanently on the job. Men did put up with overcrowding because it was war and they were patriotic.

"The most serious trouble we have before us today is the 585,000 floating population—I mean the men who float from job to job—the unskilled labor most of which is foreign. They are a disturbing element and what are we going to do to stabilize them and make them good citizens? Nothing! When we need them we hire them; when it rains we lay them off. Why can't we make good homes for them, find steady jobs for them, and have them settle down, in their own homes and become good citizens?

"The last census indicated that out of 20,255,000 families in the United States there were only 5,984,000 living in their own home free of mortgage, the smallest percentage of home owners in any civilized country in the world. This condition is indeed alarming. What is the trouble? Simply that private capital is not encouraging the small home investor. The national banks have not the privilege, the savings banks say it doesn't pay, as do also the insurance companies.

"Our federal government has assisted the farmer through the rural credits, and our industries through the Federal Reserve Banks. Now why is it not logical that it should assist the urban dweller to get a home—to build now?

"There is Federal aid for highways. Now suppose the Federal government loaned to the State, and the State doubled the amount and through the proper machinery loaned it to the home seeker at, say 5 per cent. for ten or fifteen years. The State would get every cent back. Some means to stimulate home ownership is provided in practically every country in Europe and in three in South America. It is high time we did something here. But while we are waiting we should build now.

OPPOSES FEDERAL BUILDING.

"I am opposed to the Federal government building homes, but I believe the government should stimulate every man to his own home, for that makes a contented citizen."

The United States Bureau of Industrial Housing and Transportation, of which Mr. Leland was assistant director, and the United States Housing Corporation, of which he was vice-president, have accumulated a vast store of information as to housing needs and requirements of the industrial cities. Intensive investigations were made into the labor and housing conditions of each of the 200 or more cities to ascertain the housing needs of workmen engaged on war work. The investigation developed particular needs of various districts, available materials, public utilities, general facilities, kinds of construction and building material locally preferred.

BOOK ON WAR HOUSING.

"This experience and material should be rendered available to intending builders, and should be presented so that it will induce home ownership throughout the country," Mr. Leland said. "The United States Housing Corporation is preparing a book 'War Housing,' giving the information gathered. This very valuable book will be available by the end of June, and may be obtained by writing to the United States Housing Corporation, No. 613 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"One of the most natural and economic means of reducing unemployment is to stimulate employment of labor in home building. There is an estimated shortage of 1,000,000 homes in the United States, due to lack of home building during the war. Reports from all over the country indicate that the individual home builder and the operative builder find it very difficult, if not impossible, to get money with which to build or to secure mortgages for a sufficient percentage of the value of their building to render investment possible.

"Therefore, since the war forced this Government—YOU—to learn how to build well and economically, why not let us get started and BUILD NOW!"

BRITISH LABOR PARTY CONDEMNS PEACE TREATY

London, May 23.—A new manifesto was issued by the British labor party today condemning the peace treaty with Germany as violating the pledges given to labor.

The manifesto says the treaty shows no recognition of the new Germany and contains the germs of new wars in the future while making the league of nations "an instrument of imperialism."

Lawrence Strikers Thank American for Fairness

Editor American:

At a meeting of the general strike committee yesterday, held in Maple Hall, No. 166 Maple street, the editorial in the Boston American commenting upon the strikers' victory and upon the restraint and order with which the strike was conducted, was read and cheered.

This was followed by a resolution thanking the American for its fair attitude toward the strikers and their cause:

"We thank the Boston American for its aid and sympathy during the long fight we have made to prevent a reduction in our wages.

(Signed)

"LAWRENCE STRIKE COMMITTEE."

POLICE CHIEF AT LAWRENCE ACCUSED

Charges Against Strikers Instigated by O'Brien, Says Deltuas in Affidavit

Lawrence, May 23.—In a letter to the strike committee, which disbanded today following settlement of the textile strike, John Deltuas, otherwise known as John Deltuvas, made affidavit that charges made by him to the police of unlawful activities on the part of the committee were false and were instigated by City Marshal Timothy O'Brien. This was the statement of strike leaders on the occasion of dissolving their committee.

Deltuas was accused by strike leaders of being a spy and a private detective in the interests of the authorities. He was active in all committee affairs, and nominated himself a member of all special committees. His zeal aroused the suspecions of strike leaders and he was watched.

At one time when a delegation went to Boston to seek an interview with the Governor, Deltuas charged that he was threatened in a room on Causeway street to which the delegation repaired. He appealed to the authorities for protection on the alleged ground that his life was in danger. He reported to City Marshal O'Brien various alleged remarks made in private session by strikers.

Their reply to the charges was that they suspected Deltuas, and that the remarks in question were "cooked up" to test him.

About a week ago Deltuas and John Mache, another "private detective" and member of the strike committee, were charged with inciting to riot. Both are Lithuanians. It was said today that Deltuas resented his arrest and that his letter is in the nature of retaliation.

The letter of Deltuas was turned over to George E. Roewer, Jr., of Boston, counsel for the strikers. City Marshal O'Brien was in Newburyport today attending the session of the Superior Court.

On the formal disbanding of the strike committee, Chairman Samuel Bramhall was presented with a gold watch. Only the finance committee is now left of the strikers' organization. Although it was admitted that the organization was several thousand dollars in debt, leaders stated that the finance committee would continue to make efforts to aid needy families of mill operatives.

DENIES BABIES OF LAWRENCE ARE IN WANT

Mrs. W. L. Putnam Takes Issue With Statement; Seeks Addresses of All Needy

Editor of the American:

An appeal is being circulated for money to buy milk for babies in Lawrence, the statement being made that "four hundred are getting no milk and as many others are not sufficiently fed."

Having been in touch for some years with those working for the welfare of children in Lawrence, and having some knowledge of the milk situation in this State, I have taken special pains to investigate this matter and other statements of smilar character which would lead the public to believe that the authorities and citizens of Lawrence were neglecting their duty to the poor and suffering.

I find the facts to be entirely at variance with the statements made in this appeal; and the implication frequently heard, that there is great suffering in Lawrence and little or no means at hand in the city to provide relief, to be far from the truth.

There are in the employ of the city four registered nurses and an attendant, the whole duty of all five being child conservation. Besides these nurses there is a district nurse with half a dozen assistants (who are themselves students in the training school for nurses) to visit the suffering poor.

GIVE PROMPT ATTENTION.

Those in charge of the work of these nurses are in constant touch with the strikers' relief committee, and, as their offices are next door, there is no delay in transmission, and every case referred by the strikers' relief committee has been visited before night of the day on which it was received.

Cases of need have never been brought in by the strikers' relief committee except in small numbers, and recently these few have been reduced almost to nothing. One case of an undernourished baby was recently reported by them. This child is now receiving beef juice, milk and all that it requires. The four hundred babies mentioned in the appeal have been sought for in vain.

The doctors and nurses have been making specially careful examinations of all the school children. This is a long process and not yet completed, but as far as they have gone, very little undernourishment among school children has been found, although the schools already investigated have been in the poorer parts of the city.

TOO MANY LOOSE STATEMENTS.

These loose statements are easy to make and not so easy to refute, for it takes time to investigate in order to be able to state things truthfully. I believe I need not say that the facts here given have been carefully studied and verified.

If those interested in sending out this appeal would furnish to the chairman of the child welfare committee of the Women's Council of National Defence in Lawrence the addresses of the 800 babies for whom they are appealing their needs would be promptly met by the citizens of Lawrence.

The address of the chairman of this committee is Mrs. H. L. Sherman, No. 49 Thorndike street, Lawrence.

This would be a much more effective and rapid way of helping the suffering babies in Lawrence than the spectacular methods employed—and would it not be fairer to the citizens of Lawrence as well?

MRS. WILLIAM LOWELL PUTNAM.

Canada Does Away With Titles Given By the King

By International News Service.

Ottawa, May 23.—By a vote of ninety-four to forty-three the House of Commons today decided to ask the King "graciously to refrain" in the future from conferring titular distinctions upon persons living in Canada. This means that titles shall not be permitted to take root on Canadian soil.

All knighthoods, hereditary titles and such decorations as C. M. G. and C. B. will be abolished should the King grant the request of the Canadian commoners.

This abolition of titled aristocracy in Canada is one of the direct influences of the war. There was great jubilation in the House when the measure carried after an all-day debate, which at times was at fever heat.

MILITARY POLICY COURSE URGED FOR HARVARD

Armory for Soldiers Field and Memorial for Dead Are Recommended

The Harvard committee on military science and tactics having won the university authorities over to a policy of military instruction, the award of war degrees, and compulsory athletics for freshmen, has presented its annual report to President Lowell and the Harvard Board of Overseers.

Further plans for adoption suggested by the committee are:

That in addition to the artillery course already arranged, infantry and naval courses of instruction be given.

That a broad course in military history and policy by an experienced officer of acknowledged pre-eminence be established.

That as soon as funds can be found available an armory in connection with a gymnasium be constructed on Soldiers Field.

That a special committee of the board be appointed to confer with the special committee appointed by the corporation and with such Harvard graduates and bodies as may take the matter under consideration with respect to the prompt establishment of an adequate memorial to the Harvard men who have died in the war.

That the university further by its example and inspiration the establishment of a system of universal service throughout the nation.

Pointing Out The Advantages

This Live Store Offers

It's a good deal like pointing out the full moon on a cloudless night. A man with only half an eye can see if he only looks. All you need to do is look through this vast stock of Good Clothes to learn that better style, better quality and better value for the money are [illegible] characteristics of this great store.

Some stores are under the disadvantage of having to guess as regards style—and sometimes they guess wrong. But we are in a position to KNOW because of our close association with the few makers who are looked up to among the trade as style creators.

We set a higher standard of quality than most stores think necessary. And we are able to maintain that standard because we operate on such a large scale through our Eight Live Stores that manufacturers are glad to meet our requirements to the smallest detail.

Our greater value-giving results from our exceptionally large orders, cash payment for all goods, elimination of charge-account expenses and losses, low rent and the smallest possible margin of profit.

The highest degree of style, quality and value-giving are combined in these

NATURAL DEATH GOOD GROUND FOR CLAIM

War Risk Insurance "Death Bed" Cases Are Made Clear

Current statements to the effect that the War Risk Insurance Bureau [illegible] make [illegible] on deaths [illegible] are erroneous [illegible] statements have probably arisen from the refusal of the Bureau to [illegible] made by a man in a [illegible] on the ground that [illegible] does not authorize the granting of insurance to a dying applicant.

PUBLIC CONFUSED.

Much confusion has become apparent in the public mind because of these so-called "death bed" cases. The use of this term has given [illegible] impression. The term [illegible] conditions under which [illegible] for insurance [illegible] claims are those claims [illegible] from applications made [illegible] at the time are mortally ill of a disease which results in their [illegible] In such cases the Bureau gives the beneficiary the opportunity to prove to the satisfaction of the Bureau [illegible] applicant's condition when taking insurance was not fatal [illegible] In this the War Risk Insurance Act gives him the right to submit the question to a United States District Court.

WILL PAY JUST CLAIMS.

It is the desire of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance to pay every claim arising under insurance applied for [illegible] with the requirements of law. If the Bureau decides in any case that the application was not validly made the beneficiary still has the right to test the correctness of [illegible] decision in a United States [illegible]

Insurance claims for deaths from natural causes and claims for deaths from battle are paid by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance on exactly the same basis. The War Risk Insurance Act expressly provides that the insurance is against "death or total permanent disability" and more claims are now being made for deaths which arose from natural causes than from deaths which have resulted from actual battle conditions.

DEMPSEY BEAT JOE BONDS IN FIRST BIG BATTLE

(Copyright, 1919, by Damon Runyon)

It was now that Jack Dempsey first began paying for the privilege of riding on railroad trains. It went against his grain to some extent, and he avoided it as much as possible for a couple of years thereafter, but the people who were promoting the fight at Ely, Nev., and who had offered him $300 for his services, also sent him money to pay his fare to Ely.

Jack had some thought of saving this money by the simple process of tucking it in his jeans and travelling in his old way, but then he decided that it might shock the promoters to see a $300 fighter come into town "on the hummer." So he bought a regular ticket and rode "on the cushions." He felt almost embarrassed over the situation.

En route to Ely, Jack had to change cars at a place called Cobre, Nevada where a number of passengers from another train just in from the West coast also got aboard the same varnished caravan on which Dempsey was riding to the scene of his engagement. There was a long wait at Cobre, and Jack took advantage of the delay to descend upon a nearby eating house and equip himself with a lot of big fat sandwiches.

When he got aboard his train again, and took his seat, he discovered he had company in the form of a large gent who had evidently changed from the coast train. There was no mistaking the identity of this gent, because on every piece of luggage that he had piled up in the aisle and on the rack overhead, was the name "Joe Bonds."

SHARES FOOD WITH BONDS.

The name meant nothing much to Dempsey at the moment, though it undoubtedly means something to even the most casual follower of the old pastime of fist swinging, especially of this particular era. And it meant a chunk to the owner of it.

Jack sat munching his sandwiches, and eyeing the large gent, while the large gent eyed Jack's sandwiches. There was something disturbingly omniverous in his gaze and our hero shuffled his feet uneasily.

"I wonder where a man could get something to eat around here," soliloquized the large gent.

"Why, I guess there isn't much of anything," said Jack. "Would you have a sandwich?"

"Would I?" remarked the large gent, reaching. "I should say I would. I'm about half starved."

"I'm Mr. Bonds," he said between bites on Jack's sandwiches. "Mr. Joe Bonds. I'm just back from Australia, and I'm going up here into the sticks to fight some sucker by the name of Dempsey."

A light broke over our hero. It came to him suddenly that he also was en route to fight some fellow, and that the fellow's name was Bonds—Joe Bonds. He contemplated Mr. Bonds with new interest.

"Yes," continued Mr. Bonds, "I'm making a quick trip up here to fight this sucker, and then I've got to hurry back to the coast and meet my manager, Mr. Jack Kearns."

Mark now how the long arm of coincidence reaches out across Dempsey's path. Jack Kearns, who took Bonds to Australia a few years ago along with a number of other fighters, is the same Jack Kearns who now manages Dempsey.

GOOD FOOTBALL PLAYER.

Bonds was a northwestern heavyweight who at one time was regarded as holding considerable promise. He was and still is—something of an all around athlete. He enlisted in the navy during the war, and within the past year appeared in a number of exhibition bouts around New York.

When Tom Thorp, the old Columbia player and coach and football expert of the Evening Journal organized the men of the training ship Granite State into a football team last Fall, he had Bonds playing guard, and Joe was a good guard too.

Dempsey did not tell Bonds he was the "sucker" Joe was going up into "the sticks" to fight. He kept very quiet and let Joseph ramble. And Joseph rambled to considerable extent as I gather from Jack.

When the train reached Ely however, Dempsey ducked away from Bonds. He did not want any one to see them getting off together for fear they might be suspected of collusion. He hurried up to the saloon conducted by one Tommy Chambers, who was promoting the contest, and was standing at the bar when in came "Mr. Bonds."

"Mr. Bonds," said Tommy Chambers, "have you met your opponent, Mr. Dempsey yet?"

"Mr. Bonds" stared and blinked his eyes. Perhaps he recalled what he had said about going to fight a "sucker." But Dempsey merely grinned as they shook hands and made no reference to their late companionship.

Mark once more how coincidence trails the track of Dempsey. At that time the Northern Hotel was the best hotel in Ely. It was too expensive to be considered by Jack as a tarrying point. The Northern was owned by Tex Rickard, who is paying Jack $27,500 as his share of the twelve-round contest on July 4.

EASY WIN FOR DEMPSEY.

Dempsey trained for the fight with Bonds in the back room of Chambers saloon. The affair was a ten-rounder, and was at first attracting some little attention. It might have drawn a big crowd if it hadn't been for "Mr. Bonds."

"He went all around town saying it was a dirty shame to put a fellow like me in the ring with him," says Jack. "People got the impression that he was going to murder me, and as a result the attendance wasn't what it should have been.

"I was pretty sore at him, and I went in to give him a good pasting. I knocked him down four or five times, and roughed him around, and did my best to knock him out, but couldn't do it. All he did was holler foul during the fight, and he tore out of town the next day pretty well marked up."

"Haw-haw!" interjects Manager Jack Kearns, "I remember well when he came back to San Francisco with a big black eye. I gathered from his story that he had met with some sort of accident."

"Well," Dempsey continues, "I stuck around Ely for several days after that fight, because I had $300 in my kick, and everybody was telling me how good I was. They talked of sending out to get somebody else to fight me, but they didn't do it, so I went back to Salt Lake. Yes, I paid my way back, I was getting used to riding on those cushions.

"When I got home, a promoter wanted me to go to Ogden to fight Terry Kellar, a local boy. They offered me $200, and ordinarily I would have taken it, but I was getting cute, and I looked Kellar up and found he was pretty tough. So I raised my price to $300. They offered me $250 and then I raised them to $350. They finally agreed to that price, and I went to Ogden.

"I asked them for my money before I got in the ring, but they didn't have it on hand. So I says 'Well, give me something with your name on it.' You see, I'd heard about checks, but I didn't exactly know what they were. I thought any slip of paper with a person's name on it would be O. K.

"So they gave me a note of some kind, and it was perfectly good at that. Then I boxed Kellar ten rounds. He knocked me over in the fourth or fifth but I got up and went on, all right, and at the finish Tom Painter, the Mayor of Evanston, Wyoming, who was refereeing, gave me the decision.

"Afterward I boxed Kellar ten rounds at Ely and got another decision over him and $225. He was better than the first time I met him. Quite a bit later in my career I stopped him in five rounds at Dayton, Ohio.

"Only a few weeks ago I went out to Detroit and boxed an exhibition with him, so you can see Terry and I are pretty well acquainted."

75,000 Expected at Willard-Dempsey Title Bout

Toledo, May 23.—Intricate problems of transporting the 60,000 to 75,000 persons expected to attend the Willard-Dempsey fight, July 4, were worked out by representatives of twenty-seven railroads, twelve electric railways and three steamship companies who met here.

Passengers probably will be permitted to occupy berths while they are here.

DAN McCORMACK BOXES NOONAN AT C. A. C.

Bout Between Speedy Lightweights Tops All-Star Bill—Williams Meets Curry

RINGSIDE'S SELECTIONS

Dan McCormack to beat Johnny Noonan.

Paddy Flynn to beat Freddie Duffy.

Freddie Williams to beat Joe Curry.

Young Cahill, to beat Frank Tillo.

By RINGSIDE.

Another bang-up all-star boxing show will be held at the Commercial A. C. tonight. Three ten-round battles and a six-round preliminary form the program. There is considerable interest being shown in the ten round mixup between Dan McCormack, East Boston lightweight, and Johnny Noonan of Dorchester.

McCormack has been coming to the front at a lively clip of late months and is not a bit bashful in announcing it will not be long before he is hailed as the boss of the New England 133-135-pounders.

For a time Johnny Buckley of South Boston was stopping McCormack's drives for fame and championship titles. The East Boston youth was not disheartened over his failure to win over his rival. The result was that he kept mastering new points about the ring game, and finally developed to such an extent he was able to add Buckley to his list of victims.

GOT EVEN WITH SUGGS.

With Buckley out of the way there was still another task which McCormack desired to accomplish. It was to trounce Chick Suggs of Newport. Before the East Boston youth had become a polished boxer he made a trip to Newport and was given a decisive defeat by Suggs. He wanted revenge. And he got it at the Commercial A. C. a few weeks ago.

Noonan will give McCormack plenty of opposition. He is a stiff puncher, while he has gathered plenty of experience since he quit the ranks of the amateurs.

In another ten-round number, Freddie Duffy of Jamaica Plain will try a come-back in a bout against Paddy Flynn of Everett. A few years ago Duffy was one of the best of the New England lightweights. He then met a series of defeats and retired. He has been training faithfully and believes he is in line to hand setbacks to a flock of local boxers.

CURRY MEETS WILLIAMS.

Joe Curry, New Haven lightweight and Freddie Williams of Cambridge will exchange blows in the third ten round whirl. Curry has been training in Boston for several days and expects to win.

Williams made a big hit with the fans when he recently held Hackney even at the Fenway A. A. He looks like one of the best of the new crop of New England lightweights.

Young Cahill of Everett and Frank Tillo, North End boxer, will go over the jumps in the curtain-raiser. These youths went to a draw decision last Friday night.

Rule 56, Section 17—"If a coacher at THIRD BASE touch or hold a base-runner at THIRD BASE or a base-runner who is rounding THIRD BASE for home plate the umpire shall declare such base-runner out."

But there isn't a word about interference at the initial corner.

MAYOR PETERS WILL PRESENT GOWDY GIFT

Hero Hank to Get Costly Watch and Chain and Big Bundle of Victory Notes

Mayor Peters will present the gift of the baseball fans of Greater Boston and New England to Hank Gowdy at Braves Field tomorrow afternoon. He has also notified John B. Gillooly, sporting editor of the American, that he mailed a check today to swell the fund's total.

As a result of several late contributions Treasurer O'Neil will be unable to announce the amount of the money received before tomorrow. It is expected, however, it will be well past the $800 mark.

The committee in charge of the fund has decided to present Gowdy with a gold watch and chain and a gold cigar cutter. It is a twenty-one jeweled watch of standard make.

VICTORY NOTES, TOO.

After these gifts have been paid for, the balance of the fund, which will amount to about $500, will be used to purchase Victory notes.

The decision as to what to give Hank was arrived at only after the consideration of the hundreds of letters with suggestions received by the American.

Many of the fans desire that Gowdy be presented with something which he would always have as a remembrance of the occasion on which he was honored by his admirers.

IT'S HARRY GOWDY.

It was then decided to give him a watch, chain and cigar cutter. The watch will be inscribed as follows:

"Presented to Harry Gowdy by the baseball fans of Boston and New England, through the Boston American, May 24, 1919."

MILLION IN OLYMPIC FUND

A. A. U. Officials Announce Rapid Progress for Big Games at Antwerp

Preliminary arrangements for the holding of the Olympic games at Antwerp next year are rapidly being completed, according to advices received here by A. A. U. officials from Belgium. Close to one million dollars has already been subscribed, and this sum no doubt will be increased greatly within the next few months.

Contributions to the fund have been received from various sources, some of the large donations being as follows: Belgium, 1,400,000 francs; city of Antwerp, 800,000 francs; Antwerp province, 100,000 francs; firms and private subscriptions, 1,500,000 francs.

At the recent meeting of the officials in charge of the preliminary details for the great games it was stated that the Beerschot Stadium will be put in shape for the international meet in September, 1920, at a comparatively small cost. The track and field events will be decided in the Antwerp Stadium, the wrestling and boxing matches in the great hall of the Zoological Gardens. The rowing races [illegible] Brussels, the Scheldt at Antwerp being considered too dangerous for aquatic contests.

There is little doubt now that the Marathon race will be included among the list of events. A report reached this country recently that the twenty-six mile run was to be discarded at the coming international competition. A. A. U. officials expressed surprise and doubted [illegible] if the race would be eliminated. But the advice received here verified the early report that the race would not be held.

At the recent meeting of the officials in charge of the preliminary details it was definitely decided that the games would be opened only to the athletes of allied and neutral countries, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey being barred from competition.

The last Olympic games were held in Stockholm in 1912. The next were scheduled for Berlin in 1916, but the war ended any chance of holding the games that year.

OFSCHGER'S ADDITION MEANS A LOT TO McGRAW CLAN

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

NEW YORK'S chances for the championship of the National League took a sudden jump when McGraw effected a trade by which he sent George Smith, a young and comparatively untried pitcher, to the Phils in return for Joe Oeschger, who is, or was, regarded as the ace of the Philadelphia pitching staff.

The deal is a peculiar one. Brooklyn wanted Smith badly, but McGraw would not, or could not, make a deal. McGraw was going to release Smith until Brooklyn refused to waive claim. Then he decided to keep the boy who has been promising for several years, but never making good the promise.

Now he is traded for a pitcher, who, on form, seems to be steady and efficient and who adds tremendously to McGraw's effectiveness on the slab.

The Giants generally are conceded to be the best team in the league, barring pitching and catching, and for a weak club to strengthen the weak spot of a strong one does not appear to be good business judgment.

The trade makes acute the problem of where the line is to be drawn on trades and sales. Last Winter, when the Devil was sick and groaning to be a monk, there was loud talk of restricting sales during playing seasons and forbidding trades during certain periods.

If the old customs are to be revived, now that the Devil is convalescent, the game is in for another setback as certainly as it was rushing to ruin under the old methods.

Every owner knows that a weak team with a star can make a sale or trade that will so strengthen a contender as to decide almost any close race. The line should be drawn, and drawn fine.

The Yankees evidently read something besides the box scores. They were in Cleve and the other day and the town was posted all over with signs proclaiming it was "Clean-Up Day." In the morning Herb Thormahlen strolled into Ping Bodie's room and Ping was not in evidence, but there was a hippopotamus-like splashing in the bathroom.

"What you doing, Ping?" inquired the visitor.

"It's clean up day," retorted Ping.

In the afternoon, in the middle of the game, Duf Lewis came to bat—with men on bases.

"Clean up day, Duf," yelled Huggins, and a hit screamed outward and settled the game. That evening there was a quiet little game, and after a time four of them mixed in a rich jack pot and Bodie dragged down the coin with a small straight.

"Clean up day, fellows," he announced.

Which recalls Jimmy Block, the old catcher, who made more fun for the players of the White Sox than any one on the team, because he pulled Irish bulls in Polish. In that era the White Sox had some comedians, who constantly were pulling the old minstrel gags at table, two being end men and one the interlocutor. The older the joke the better it went. One of the favorites was:

"How are you feeling this morning, Mr. Bones?"

"Like a street car conductor."

"How is that?"

"Fare!"

One day Block tried it.

"How are you feeling this morning, Mr. Block?" inquired Frank Smith.

"Like a street car conductor," said Jimmie.

"And how is that, Mr. Block?"

"Rakin' off nickels."

Eppa Jeptha Rixey is back and expects to get into the old "unis" and perform for the Phillies within a short time. The tall string bean, who went to war with the Californians and served well in the infantry, was transferred to the gas and flame division, which delayed his return.

Rixey says he is in shape to put the smoke on the smoke ball himself. He has gained weight and is reported looking well.

NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE GETS GOING TODAY

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

PORTLAND AT FITCHBURG
LEWISTON AT LOWELL
HAVERHILL AT LAWRENCE

They're off today in the [illegible] New England League.

Fitchburg entertains Heinie Wagner and his Portland team. Fred Parent appears with his Lewiston club at Lowell; Lawrence and Haverhill, intense rivals in all branches of sports for years, clash in Lawrence.

Young blood has been given the call by all six managers. Not more than a dozen names in all the league will be familiar to the fans who recall the teams in pre-war times.

Jesse Burkett will not take active charge of the Haverhill Club until he has completed his season as coach of the Holy Cross nine. Until then Tommy Keegan, a former favorite around the circuit, will be the skipper.

Gay opening day formalities were to hold forth as an additional attraction. In Fitchburg the day was declared a semi-official holiday. In Lawrence and Lowell there were to be street parades.

Then the mayors in all three cities agreed to "pitch" the first ball.

"WHAT [illegible]

[illegible] a bad [illegible]. Not common sense [illegible] pulled me through [illegible] own doorstep. [illegible]," he added disgustedly, "the gods no doubt grew tired of such an idiot and then handed me what was coming to me."

He was so thoroughly and so boyishly ashamed and angry with himself that [illegible] a faint smile flitted over the Princess Naia's lips.

"Proceed, James," she said.

"All right. Only first may I ask who is Ilse Dumont?"

For a moment the Princess sat silent, expressionless, intent on the man whose clear, boyish eyes still questioned her.

The Princess finally answered with a question:

"Did she cause you any trouble, Jim?"

"Every bit I had was due to her. Also—and here's a paradox—I shouldn't be here now if Ilse Dumont had not played square with me. Who is she?"

The Princess Naia did not reply immediately. Instead she crossed one silken knee over the other, lighted a cigarette and [illegible] a few moments gazing into space. Then:

"Ilse Dumont [illegible] she [illegible] a talented and exceedingly pretty young woman who was born in Alsace of one German [illegible] and [illegible] thoroughly Germanized [illegible].

"She played two seasons in Chicago in light opera under another name. She had much talent, an acceptable voice and she became a local favorite."

The Princess looked at her cigarette, continued speaking as though addressing it:

"She sang at the Opera Comique here in Paris the year before last and last year. Her roles were minor ones. Early this Spring she abruptly broke her contract with the management and went to New York."

Neeland said bluntly:

"Ilse Dumont is an agent in the service of the Turkish government."

The Princess nodded.

"Did you know it, Naia?"

"I began to suspect it recently."

"May I ask how?"

The Princess glanced at Rue and [illegible]:

"Ruhannah's friend, Colonel Izzet [illegible] was very devoted to Minna [illegible]."

"[illegible]" exclaimed Neeland. [illegible]

"Ilse Dumont, Minna Minti [illegible] is a fairly [illegible] name," said the Princess. [illegible] turned and looked at Rue.

In the [illegible] of his excitement, Neeland [illegible] never suspect[illegible] he was about to say [illegible] Princess said quietly:

"[illegible] her, Jim. It is better [illegible] know. Until now it has [illegible] necessary to mention the [illegible] I should have done so."

[illegible] surprised, still prettily [illegible] with expectancy, looked [illegible] a new curiosity from one to [illegible] Neeland said:

[illegible]ric Shock

"Ilse Dumont, known on the stage as Minna Minti, is the divorced wife of Eddie Brandes."

At the mention of a name so long hidden away, buried in her memory, almost forgotten, the girl quivered and straightened up, as though an electric shock had passed through her body.

Then a burning color flooded her face as at the swift stroke of a lash, and her gray eyes glimmered with the starting tears.

"You'll have to know it, darling," said the Princess in a low voice. "There is no reason why you should not; it no longer can touch you. Don't you know that?"

"Y-yes—" Ruhannah's slowly drooping head was lifted again; held high; and the wet brilliancy slowly dried in her steady eyes.

"Before I tell you," continued Neeland, "what happened to me through Ilse Dumont, I must tell you what occurred in the train on my way to Paris. . . . May I have a cigarette, Princess Naia?"

[illegible] documents and the importance to us of [illegible] 'stars'" asked the Princess. [illegible] he repeated. [illegible]

"What is Turkey?" [illegible] "A certain province." [illegible] "I don't know." [illegible] the Ottoman Empire [illegible] Princess [illegible] the Kaiser Wilhelm [illegible] the Dardanelles and the adjacent states within the sphere of German influence."

"So that is why you wanted them," he said with an unhappy glance at Rue. "What idiotic impulse prompted me to put them back in the box I can't imagine. You saw me do it, there in the taxicab."

Saw His Face

"The chauffeur saw you too. He was looking at you in his steering mirror. I saw his face. But it never entered my mind that anything except curiosity possessed him."

"Perhaps," said the Princess to Neeland, "what you did with the papers saved your life. Had that chauffeur seen you place them in the box he might have shot and robbed you as you left the cab merely on the chance of your having them on your person."

There was a silence, then Neeland said:

"This is a fine business! As far as I can see murder seems to be the [illegible] of the contract."

[illegible] said [illegible] "But [illegible] Ruhannah will soon be out [illegible] surprised [illegible]

"[illegible] going to be war [illegible] as far as I am concerned. And that means that you and Ruhannah, too, will have to [illegible]"

"[illegible]" asked the girl, anxiously.

"I expect to remain. How long can you stay here, Jim?"

Neeland cast an involuntary glance at Rue as he replied:

"I intended to take the next steamer. Why? Can I be of any service to you, Princess Naia?"

The Princess [illegible] her dark eyes rest [illegible] a second, then [illegible]

"I was thinking," she said, "that you might take Ruhannah back with you if war is declared."

"Back to America!" exclaimed the girl. "But where am I to go in America? What am I to do there? I—I didn't think I was quite ready to earn my own [illegible]," looking anxiously at the Princess Naia—"do you think so, dear?"

The Princess [illegible]

"I wanted you to remain. And you must not worry, darling. Some day I [illegible] But if there [illegible] cannot remain here."

"Why not?"

"In the first place only useful people would be wanted in Paris——"

"But, Naia, darling! Couldn't I be useful to you?" The girl jumped up from [illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible]

"When I first saw [illegible] I was [illegible] sorry for [illegible] willing to oblige Jim Neeland by keeping an eye on you until you were settled somewhere here in Paris.

"Before we landed I liked you. And, because I saw wonderful possibilities in the little country girl who shared my stateroom, I deliberately made up my mind to develop you, make use of your excellent mind, your quick intelligence, your amazing capacity for absorbing everything that is best, and your very unusual attraction [illegible] my own purposes [illegible] truth, you [illegible]

Then a Silence

[illegible] The girl looked up at her, flushed, [illegible] perplexed. The Princess [illegible] her hands [illegible] the girl's shoulders, look[illegible] at her [illegible] grave and [illegible] dark eyes.

[illegible] said the Princess [illegible]

[illegible] face in silence; Neeland, his elbows resting on his knees, leaned slightly [illegible]

"I'll help you, if you wish," said Rue Carew.

"Thank you, dear. No."

"Let me. I owe you everything since I have been here——"

[illegible] said to you—[illegible]

[illegible] that is ignoble in mankind.

"There is no reason for you to enter such [illegible], no excuse for it [illegible] no patriotism incites you to such self-sacrifice, no memory of wrong done to your nearest and dearest inspires you to dedicate your life to a dog [illegible] a little in the downfall and destruction [illegible] who encompassed it."

Prolonging Life

THE history of every life is a gradual ascent from the time of birth until a certain point is reached, and from that point one [illegible] until it finds its termination in death. Just at the point of decline is the time of special liability to the development of certain abnormal states.

At this critical age the protective powers of the body are less active. If special care is taken to conserve one's health by hygienic living at this time one will probably [illegible] disagreeable ailment.

[illegible] three chronic ailments especially liable to attack men between [illegible] and sixty-three. These are [illegible] sclerosis (hardening of the [illegible] vessels), Bright's [illegible] chief cause is continued strain—domestic trials, financial worries, emotional storms and mental anxieties.

The preventive treatment is simple; the strain of life must be ruthlessly curtailed, work must be lessened and leisure cultivated, the diet must be adjusted to the necessities of the condition and the capacity of the damaged organs.

A Misunderstanding

"Mary," said a lady to her servant, "I am very tired and am going to lie down for a while. If I should happen to drop off call me at five." "Yes, ma'am," replied the dutiful maid. The lady lay down on the couch, closed her eyes, and was soon in the land of dreams. She was awakened by the clock striking six. "Mary, why didn't you call me at five, as I told you to do?" she said to the maid indignantly. "Well, ma'am, you told me to call you if you dropped off. I looked in at five, and you hadn't dropped off at all. You were lying on the couch."

YOUR mother served Puddine! 'Member how the meal dragged when you knew there was Puddine for dessert? How delighted you were when along came a rich, brown chocolate, a cream vanilla, or a firm, smooth mound of pink rose vanilla Puddine!

Puddine can still be had—an easy-to-make dessert that tops off any meal. Simply add sugar and milk—either fresh or condensed—and boil for three minutes. It always turns out right—a firm, smooth mold of delicious creaminess.

A full box of Puddine—costing but 15c—will serve 15 people. And of course, you need use only as much at one time as you need.

Use Puddine for rich pie and cake fillings, and smooth, velvety ice cream.

"WELL," he said coldly. "Let's have the story now, please."

"It's not much of a story, Jim. I'd seen your pride—I'd heard of it from your friends. I saw you go to pieces from that dreadful inspection trip that kept you walking and walking about that factory all day long. And Terry and Betty loved you. Betty owed you so much—and you wouldn't play fair and let them pay. Mr. Norreys did need a man he could trust. His assistant did want to go into the actual fighting. So that was all true. Don't you believe me, Jim? Don't you know it is true?" I begged.

"Go on." Jim's voice was cold.

"Well, the hitch was your—pride. Risking the offer of the job seemed too much. We couldn't. We had to let you—discover it. So Terry phoned Neal begging him to take it on and Neal couldn't and and then you just naturally — were ready to help Terry."

"And this clever scheme for tricking me? Who invented it? Who thought I was a baby you had to coax instead of a man to reason with? Who took me for the fool your proceedings made me look? Who guessed I'd learn bookkeeping or—playing the fiddle to help old Terry—and took advantage of my friendship for the best fellow that ever lived?" snarled Jim.

I stared at Jim and my heart came into my throat.

How he loved Terry! And now Terry needed friendship to tide him over the dark hours while Betty was gone—and the perhaps darker hours to come when we found her. I had to take the blame on myself—it was the only way.

"It was all my fault, Jim," I managed to say. "[illegible] how did you find it out? It was none of us—Jean or [illegible] Neal or Terry. Now who told you?"

CHAPTER CXXII

"WHO told me? Who told me about the pretty [illegible] that [illegible] roaded me into Norreys's office and made me the laughing stock of the place?" A scornful laugh rasped in Jim's throat as he stared at me with a challenge in his eyes. "Well, suppose you crack your brains over that for awhile. Won't hurt you to do a little wondering."

"But, Jim," I protested, "I ought to know. Otherwise I'll suspect every one—even myself. And if there's a leak in Mr. Norreys's organization he ought to know."

"Don't worry about Norreys. He got along pretty well before he had your devoted friendship," scoffed Jim. "And as far as suspecting everyone is concerned, do you think what you suffer will be a marker to what it means to me to learn that I cannot trust my own wife?"

"That's not fair," I protested. "I was trying to do what was best for you and I did it because I loved you. You act now almost as if you hated me."

In a second Jim crossed the room and seized me in his arms. Roughly he pressed his lips to my mouth and throat before he spoke.

"I love you, you little witch—and you know it. But I won't have you trying to run my life. I'm master here—and you know that, too. But you've got me hipped. I'm mad about you, so I forgive you. But if ever again you try to fool me for my own good—there'll be the [illegible] to pay. I'll put you out of my life, Anne, as if you were the chalk marks a kid wipes off his slate. Well—that's flat."

And then I was frightened. I found it on the tip of my tongue to cry out, "Jim, dear, the whole Norreys conspiracy, as you call it, was Terry's idea. I didn't like it. I protested against it and I was dragged into it against my will."

But something decent in me protested that Jim adored Terry—that Terry needed Jim's friendship now as never before and that right this minute I couldn't trust Jim to stay sane and kind in his feelings for his old pal if once he knew how that pal had insisted on deceiving him.

So in the face of Jim's declaration I kept silent. I hope I won't have to pay too dearly for that some day.

"Jim, dearest," I said, quietly, "[illegible] did you leave Mr. Norreys without a word of warning just because you thought he'd taken you on [illegible] of kindness instead of necessity?"

Jim held me off at arm's length and shook me.

"[illegible] you do think I'm a fine [illegible]," he said. "No—I heard the [illegible] war' was [illegible] looking for a job. So I [illegible] up and put him in [illegible] with Norreys this morning [illegible] I worked out [illegible] I had bigger fish to fry than any that swim around the Norreys pond."

Stocks Strong in New York in Morning Trading

STEEL COMMON ADVANCES A POINT

Rails Improve and Motors Move Upward in an Active Market

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong and the market active in New York at noon. U. S. Steel was showing more than a point gain and steel issues ruled higher. The former led the upturn which followed a slight reaction near the end of the first hour. Railway shares became strong in the second hour, some advancing more than a point above yesterday's final figures. Motors were as strong as a class as any stock on the list. Chandler selling at its highest record price. There was a recessional period for oils after early strength. But they rallied later in the forenoon.

A number of specialties made good gains, including Associated Dry Goods. Among other issues to advance notably were Peoples' Gas, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys Overland, U. S. Food Products, Ohio Cities Gas, Columbia Gas, Continental Can, American Cotton Oil, American Locomotive, American Woolen, common, Reading, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Texas & Pacific and Kelly-Springfield.

U. S. Steel sold as high as 104, a gain of 1⅛, during the morning.

BETTER TONE AT OPENING.

There was a better tone to the market at the opening and in earliest trading gains extended throughout the list, varying from fractions to more than a point. U. S. Steel started strong, other steels were higher and equipments advanced. National Lead gained almost three points within half an hour. Demand for oil issues were persistent, with Royal Dutch, Sinclair and Texas Co. leading. Traction shares were higher, marines reached a higher level and motors were strong and active. Express company shares continued to climb. Adams gaining six points in the first hour. Not much trading took place for an hour in either rails or coppers.

MORE STEEL MILL ACTIVITY.

Steel shares benefited by trade reports. While the improvement is slow, mills are getting more orders and an increased demand for pig iron is considered a most hopeful sign. Buying of steel products on a scale which will insure fair activity at plants cannot be delayed long, it is stated. The trade is awaiting action by the Railway Administration on rail bids. No hint has come from Washington regarding prices named by manufacturers. They are believed to be higher than government officials expected under competition.

COPPER METAL TRADE QUIET.

There is a lull in copper metal buying, according to all information at hand. But the price is steady, and will probably advance as soon as consumers come into the market again. When Chairman John D. Ryan of the Anaconda Co. was asked his opinion as to the red metal situation, he said: "Copper is in better position than for many months, but its future will depend on the restoration of European industry to pre-war prosperity. There can be no marked advance in the price of the metal until the European demand revives."

CALFSKIN AT ITS RECORD HIGHEST PRICE

After holding out for a fortnight for 70 cents a pound for calfskin, one of the four largest packing concerns in the country has obtained that price, which is the highest on record. The immediately preceding price was 65 cents and calfskin sold at 60 late in April, while the government-fixed maximum price was 44 cents. This is an advance of 26 cents a pound within a brief period.

Finished black calf is now selling at 85 cents a pound. Three months ago it was around 66 cents. For "A" grade 90 cents has been paid and 92 asked, a rise of 3 to 5 cents in a week or so.

BANK CLEARINGS LARGER IN PEACE THAN IN WAR

In its current New England letter, the First National Bank of Boston says the sharp dislocation of business freely predicted as inevitably following the armistice failed to materialize. Instead there ensued a slowing down and hesitancy, while industry shifted from war to peace. This slackening of business has been of short duration and it is surprising to note that since last December bank clearings have been running fully 15 per cent. over last year's tremendous volume.

In connection with this statement by this bank, it is interesting to compare yesterday's clearings in the four years back, the figures being:

	May 22, '19	May 23, '18	May 24, '17
N. Y.	$753,178,030	$606,678,643	$557,408,029

Reports from Oil Fields

The United Fuel Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas & Electric Company, has drilled its well 926 feet in Kanawha county, West Virginia, into the pay sand and is getting 175 barrels of oil a day.

Acquisition of Mexican Eagle by Royal Dutch gives it an additional production of about 18,000,000 barrels a year and 18 tank steamships with six more under construction.

The Texas Company is conducting an extensive drilling campaign in the North Central Texas field, 35 wells now being drilled and rigs erected for nine more.

The Ohio Cities Gas Company has brought in another well in the Cabin Creek district in Boone county, West Virginia, which is good for 300 barrels a day.

The Commonwealth Petroleum Corporation is now drilling twelve wells on its acreage in California. Drilling operations on the corporation's holdings in the Ranger field are soon to be started, the first work to be drilling of six wells.

'L' SHARES DROP ON APRIL REPORT

Boston Market Starts Steady and Becomes Irregular During Morning

The local market was steady at the start and as a rule earliest price changes were upward. Before the end of the morning irregularity marked the list. Trading was active, but the price range was narrow. There was no feature of especial interest connected with transactions in Boston.

Newly listed issues were fairly active, but fluctuated little either way. United Fruit was off a point during the morning. United Fruit was fractionally higher. U. S. Smelting sold as high as it has this year, but showed a loss later. Boston Elevated was off almost four points before noon. Its weakness was attributed in part to its poor report for April.

Swift & Co. was the most active of the packing issues and advanced a little. Helvetia sold higher, but reacted. Low-priced coppers were the most prominent stocks in the mining group, but did not change much as to prices.

Wolverine Dividend

Directors of the Wolverine Copper Co. have declared a quarterly dividend of fifty cents per share, payable July 1 to stock of record June 14. Three months ago the dividend was fifty cents, and six months ago $1 a share.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, May 23.—Corn opened unchanged to ⅛c lower. Oats were ⅛c lower to ¼c higher. Provisions opened lower. Opening prices were: Corn—July, $1.65¼; September, $1.57⅜. Oats—July, 68¾c to 68⅝c; September, 64½ to 65c. Pork—July, $49.50. Lard—July, $30.95.

BILLION FROM CONGRESS FOR RAILROADS

Deficits Make Appropriation Necessary, Declares Chairman Esch

Washington, May 23.—An appropriation of one billion dollars will have to be made by Congress for the railroads, Chairman Esch of the Interstate Commerce Committee said today.

The bill appropriating for the railroad administration, which failed last March, carried $750,000,000.

The March and April reports of Director-General Hines of the Railroad Administration show further deficits for the railroads, making the increased appropriation necessary.

Chairman Esch said that his committee would begin consideration of railroad and other legislation next week.

Gorton-Pew Earnings

Recent stock market strength of the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company was accounted for when it reported for the fiscal year ended with March this year sales totalling $9,369,750. This is the best showing in the corporation's history. Net profits were $501,962. The dividends paid during the year were $234,828, being 7 per cent on $750,000 of preferred stock until its retirement last Fall, 8 per cent. on new preferred stock issued last Fall and 4 per cent on the common.

Three-Day Closing in N. Y.

The New York Stock Exchange will be closed Memorial Day, and the succeeding Saturday and Sunday, or on May 30, May 31 and June 1. The three-day holiday will give brokers a chance to bring accounts up-to-date after the most remarkable stretch of million-share days on record.

Atlantic Coast Line reports for 1918, surplus after charges and war taxes $7,171,854, equivalent after preferred dividends to $10.17 a share on the common. In 1917 surplus was $10,834,091, or $15.78 a share.

How Much Are YOU Losing By Slow Deliveries?

IT isn't very pleasant when your best customer calls up and says: "Jones, if you don't get those goods over to me today, I'm going to cancel the order"; but what are you going to do? one truck can't do it all, and the drivers are grumbling now about being overworked; here's what you can do: you can come up to the third floor at 18 Irvington st. and find out about that two-ton used AUTOCAR truck that someone is going to snap up at the low price at which it is offered; while you're thinking about it, why not act!

How to Teach a Man His Business

Learn Something From John B. Bogart, Who Celebrated Recently the Fiftieth Anniversary of His Wedding

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

John B. Bogart, who was city editor of the New York Sun when Charles A. Dana owned that newspaper, recently celebrated his fiftieth wedding anniversary. The city editor in a REAL newspaper office is one who teaches young men to use their brains, collect the news accurately and completely, present it briefly and interestingly.

Mr. Bogart was and is the best city editor, the best TEACHER of newspaper men in the United States. He was a whole "School of Journalism" in himself. He could teach a young man to be a newspaper man in one month, if the young man had the makings of a newspaper man within him.

Mr. Bogart, who worked anonymously all his life, interesting himself in developing the ability of young men and in building up a great newspaper, would not allow this publicity if he could prevent it.

But he can't prevent it, because it is worth while on occasions to read lectures to employers and to others that are supposed to teach their business to younger men. And Mr. Bogart's work is the right test for such a lecture.

Mr. Bogart was a great teacher, because he knew that the word EDUCATION means TO LEAD OUT or BRING OUT. Each young mind that came under his influence was considered by him a mind to be DEVELOPED. He found out what there was IN that particular mind and gave it a chance to show itself. He did not start with a theory and try to make the brain of the employe fit the theory.

For that reason Mr. Bogart, the great city editor of the United States, was able to make useful different kinds of men in different kinds of ways. One man who worked for him as a reporter became the ablest newspaper business manager in the country.

Another—Julian Ralph—became a famous correspondent. Another, who might have been taught by Heine, you know his pen name—Bruno Lessing. There were dozens like them—products of the Bogart school.

No special Providence sent to Mr. Bogart on the Sun a picked crowd of young men. It was Mr. Bogart who took the crowd as it came, selected wisely, made the best of his material, and made SOMETHING out of even the most unpromising material.

How did he do it? What can other city editors, other employers learn from him?

He was able to teach because HE KNEW. His foundation thought was ABSOLUTE THOROUGHNESS. And in what he taught he set the example; no man was ever more thorough, no man ever worked harder.

He had infinite patience, for while HE knew, he realized that others did NOT know—that the man who wants work done must first teach HOW it can be done.

He was infinitely patient and encouraging with youth and ignorance, as this writer can gratefully testify.

Stupidity did not discourage him; he blamed himself for imperfect teaching if he did not get results. He told the young man just exactly what was expected of him, where to go for his news, what questions to ask, what to do if he failed in one attempt or in one place, where to go, and what to ask next.

Mr. Bogart understood, above all, the great value of ENCOURAGEMENT AND KINDNESS.

When giving an assignment to a green young man he always had something to say, encouraging, expressing confidence, especially when he sent a young man lacking confidence in himself.

For instance, he would say to a green reporter: "Boss, I am going to read about this story in the other papers tomorrow morning, simply to find out what they did NOT have. I'll read your story in the Sun and then I shall read the real news."

Men that Mr. Bogart sent out got the story, if hard work, hard digging and hard running in the old days of no elevated railroads, no tunnels under the river, would help to get it.

Mr. Bogart knew what he meant to teach. His patience was endless, patience with human stupidity, ignorance, instability.

He selected his men carefully and considered that he himself rather than the young man had made a failure if the green reporter was not soon transformed into a good newspaper man.

He had no system of punishment; he never said to a man below him what he would not have permitted the proprietor of the newspaper to say TO HIM. Praise was the lash with which he drove his men, and they went faster and farther than they would have gone for any other. Many men are prosperous today and useful to the public, thanks to John B. Bogart, the one man school of journalism.

USING THE INFORMATION YOU HAVE

A good idea comes to you, you recognize it, but you do not make a memorandum of it, and it is gone.

You read a formula for something in which you are interested, you cut it out for further reference, don't take care of it, and consequently never follow it to its logical and desirable result.

Every time you do either of these things you lessen your chances for success.

This formula she herself had published, no one tried it thoroughly but herself, and she only acted on what she learned. The rest passed it by as insignificant or too much trouble.

To which class do you belong, the class which makes the most of every bit of information and accumulates a wealth of it, or the class which lets it go in one ear and out the other and then whines?

THE LATEST STYLES

THE latest styles in ladies' gowns
From experts in the largest towns
Will bring a lot of winks and frowns
From Tom, Dick and Harry.

DECOLLETE, well, we should say,
Dame Fashion's wearing hers that way,
And what Dame Fashion calls O. K.
The shops are sure to carry.

WITHIN our modest room we sit
While we are dashing off this bit,
Our smoking jacket seems to fit
And stays in place securely.

THOUGH it can boast no frills or fuss
'Twas made to fit a burly cuss,
But as it seems to cover us
It can't be stylish.

BY slow degrees the styles go back
To Mother Eve's first fig-leaf sack;
Till on a lass we find a lack (Alas, alack) of cover.

SO when a fashion plate we clutch
To get a peek at frocks and such,
We vow things haven't changed so much
Since Adam was a lover.

Poems of Perplexity.

There was a young lady named Lake,
Who wondered what course we should take
If those Bolsheviki
Got foxy and sneaky
And shipped all their wives to Salt Lake.

There was a nice girlie named Green,
Who was trying to fast and grow lean.
"Where I'm going," she'd say,
"Is to Russia some day,
Where they give you One Spud for One Bean!"

ON THE nearby tree.

I RENTED them out.

AND THEY'RE building nests.

A TWIG at a time.

WHY A SOLID IS NOT IN REALITY SOLID

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Does a billiard ball lying on a perfectly flat surface really touch? In other words, if both were enlarged millions of times would there be a space between them? Could a germ travel with comfort between them? My theory is that nothing really touches unless a part thereof.—P. M., West New York.

ACCORDING to the accepted theory of the constitution of matter, nothing "touches," not even the constituent particles of a so-called solid. Take a chunk of iron. Our senses tell us that it is hard and rigid, and we infer that its particles must be in the closest possible contact with one another, holding on, each to each, with a firm grasp, and squeezing themselves all together into the smallest possible compass.

A blacksmith who knew nothing about the science of physics would laugh at you if you told him that the iron that he grasps in his hand and hammers upon his anvil is made up of molecules that don't touch each other, and that are continually vibrating, or flying round and round, and to and fro, like dancers swinging through the movements of a waltz, but dancers who do not even clasp hands or touch elbows, their movements being governed entirely by the wonderful forces that keep them going, and, while keeping them going, also keep them apart.

Times Have Changed

He would be yet more amused if you assured him that the molecules are made up of still smaller particles, called atoms, which likewise keep one another at arm's length, as it were, never touching, but maintaining their separate positions within the compass of the molecule. And he would probably set you down for a crazy dreamer if you went still further and asserted that the atoms themselves (which not so many years ago were thought to be solid if anything was solid) are composed of other yet smaller particles, called electrons, which, so far from touching, fly round and round in orbits about a common centre of motion, and possess, perhaps, within the invisibly minute space of an atom, relatively as much room to perform their revolutions as have the planets that circle around the sun.

All of these things modern science declares to be true, although they lie beyond, or rather below, the limits of direct perception by man's senses. It is that fact—that these things are outside the domain of sense perception—that constitutes the chief glory of science and of the investigating human mind. The most fundamental ideas of science are based upon reasoning, which, starting from the ground of visible, tangible things, finds its way into regions inaccessible to touch and vision. Yet, before its conclusions are accepted as established principles of science they are tested and verified by their relations to things which do lie within the reach of the senses.

For instance, all of the extraordinary statements that are so confidently made about the molecules, the atoms and the electrons are accepted because they fit in perfectly with phenomena that we can actually see or handle. They accord with laws which we know by experience govern things that are of sufficient magnitude to come within the sphere of direct observation.

An Endless Chain

An intelligent being a millionth of a millimeter tall might begin with the molecule, or the atom, as the visible, tangible, subject of his experiments, and he might plunge into depths of infinitesimality so profound that he, in turn, would have to trust to imagination and reasoning to furnish him with a clew connecting him with this world of sense perception—and yet even he would, perhaps, not find anywhere anything actually touching anything else—no true, final solid.

The Moderate Profiteers
The Lame Dog—Turkey
Some One Else's Blood
Lending to Customers

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

The Manufacturers' Association says the income tax is "not only unfair, but unsound public policy." The gentlemen complain that many Americans not earning a taxable income, pay no income tax. The reply would be, "Give us a chance to earn a taxable income, and we'll pay the tax with pleasure."

Manufacturers think a "sales tax" would be better, for then every American would pay, and paying, in some way, would make him love his country.

With such a tax on all sides, the man with a family of ten children and an income of $5 a day might pay a bigger tax than John D. Rockefeller.

However, the matter isn't worth discussing, the income tax is here, and to stay. Those that dislike it most are at present in control of Congress. Let them help their prosperous friends by running the government economically, and airing the profiteers, a little.

It seems actually possible that the United States will find itself "mandatory" for Turkey. The Sultan, if you please, is to be kept at the head of the Mohammedan religion, the Turks to remain in Europe. The United States with men, ships and money is to supervise and perpetuate the situation.

You might as well hand this country a dog with one leg cut off, blind in one eye, afflicted with the mange and say: "Take care of this dog, don't let it die; keep it alive just as it is." Common sense would say: "I'll do nothing of the kind. I shall shoot the dog and put it out of its misery. That's what ought to be done with Turkey."

It is not surprising to hear that England urges the United States to become mandatory for Turkey.

There are two gates to the Mediterranean; one, Gibraltar, is in the hands of England.

To have the other gate, Constantinople, in the hands of the feeble Turk, with this country responsible for maintaining order, keeping back Bolshevism on the north and Asia on the east, would be pleasant for the owners of Gibraltar.

Not so pleasant for mothers of American men who would have to fight abroad, to keep the Sultan in physical possession of his crowd of harem ladies, and Mohammed in spiritual possession of the minds of some millions of Turks.

It isn't our country. It isn't our funeral. The American who suggests undertaking such responsibility is something more dangerous than an idiot.

Four thousand Chinese students, protesting against the giving of Chinese territory to Japan, have signed a protest, each writing his name with his blood. That is not the modern way of doing it, as Japan will tell those earnest but misguided Chinese.

If you really mean to PROTEST, write your protest in the blood of others, as Japan has done in Korea, and elsewhere. Then it counts.

The government asks for bids to build two new battleships. It got bids, prices doubled. One concern offers to construct a super-dreadnaught, "with a guarantee of a fixed profit of $1,800,000 under certain conditions."

A well-known Englishman, justly accused of robbing his government, said that on thinking things over he was amazed at his own moderation.

The cheapest bid that the government can get for a big fighting ship is something over twenty-one million dollars. How many such ships would the people have to pay for to keep the Sultan of Turkey safe in his harem at Constantinople?

President Wilson suggests that Congress extend credit to European buyers to let them buy things here. It is a good idea, probably. It ought to please the Europeans.

Almost anybody would be glad to buy, if you would lend him the money. "Let him lend me the money and have at him," said Falstaff.

There are a lot of people in the United States who would like to have "credit extended" to enable them to buy.

Some Americans would like to buy houses for their families, machinery for their business, farms for cultivation.

The country is setting aside one thousand million dollars to help develop business outside of the United States, to promote manufacturing INSIDE. That is probably a good idea, if not too many of the millions are stolen in the process.

If another thousand millions could be appropriated, or a half a dozen thousand to develop the building of homes and the draining of swamps and irrigation of deserts digging canals constructing roads etc. in THIS country it wouldn't be a bad idea.
